

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Preface

IT was a favourite saying of St. Chrysostom that "no one was ever hurt but by himself."

This, of course, was meant of moral, and not physical, injuries. And this is not only true of men, but of institutions. Kingdoms, churches, monasteries, cathedrals, colleges, are destroyed by evils from within.

This is a truth which the members of the Church of England have need to lay to heart at the present crisis. She is now assailed by powerful enemies from without. Forces, opposed to each other in almost everything else, are leagued together against her. But they will not be able to harm and destroy her if she is true to herself. Her greatest dangers are from within. If she falls it will be by the hands of her own children.

The history of the Hebrew Church in the days of the Maccabees (which is the subject of the following Sermons preached before the University of Cambridge) seems to be too much neglected by us. It has many claims on our careful attention. The Maccabees acted, suffered, and conquered in the days of Antiochus Epiphanes, who has been regarded by the Fathers of the Church as a precursor and type of Antichrist. And the severe persecution which the Hebrew Church suffered in his time has ever been considered as foreshadowing the trials which await the Church in the latter days, before the Second Coming of Christ.

These trials may perhaps be not far distant.

The evils which befell the Hebrew Church in the time of Antiochus were due, not to the power of the persecutor, but to the conduct of the high priests at Jerusalem, making cowardly compromises and concessions to the secular power, through fear of obloquy and persecution, and in the hope of princely and popular favour. They thus brought ruin on the institutions ecclesiastical and civil of their country, and infamy and misery on themselves.

Here is a solemn warning to the Church of England, especially to her ministers. May all, whether clergy or laity, have grace to profit by it, and learn, from the history of the Maccabees, to suffer joyfully and thankfully for the Truth's sake.

Others were tortured, not accepting deliverance, that they might obtain a better Resurrection.

IT is my purpose to invite your attention to a portion of the Hebrew records, which seems to have fallen into unmerited neglect, and which has a special interest for ourselves in the present times.

I refer to the history of the Maccabees.

In earlier ages of the Christian Church, the acts and sufferings of the Maccabees were celebrated with devout veneration. Their examples were commended to the imitation of the faithful by the eloquence of holy men (as appears from their extant works), such as S. Gregory Nazianzen¹ and S. Chrysostom² in the East, and S. Augustine³ and S. Leo⁴ in the West. They are eulogized by the Holy Spirit Himself in the eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, who may justly be supposed to be referring to them when He says, "Others were tortured" (literally, were beaten to death on the rack¹), "not accepting deliverance" (literally, the deliverance proffered by the persecutor, if they would obey him), "that they might obtain a better resurrection."

A yearly Festival² was instituted for their commemoration, and still holds its place in the Greek and Roman Calendar, and is called the "Birthday of the Maccabees," because it commemorates their birth by death into the felicity and glory of everlasting life.

Whether because this portion of history lies in the interval between the Old Testament and the New, or whether from an excess of reaction against the authority of the Books commonly called Apocryphal (which might be more fitly termed Ecclesiastical¹), or from whatever cause it has arisen, it surely is to be regretted that the names of the Maccabees have almost passed into oblivion among ourselves.

But, brethren, it would be difficult to find such illustrious examples of holy heroism, as are seen in the history of those who are comprehended by a general term under the title of Maccabees.²

In that history we may behold a specimen of

² The name "Maccabee," perhaps from the Hebrew "Makkâbâh," a hammer, (Gesen. Lex., p. 502,) has passed from the family of Mattathias, the father of Judas Maccabeus, to designate all the martyrs and confessors in the great religious struggle against Antiochus Epiphanes. unswerving faith and indomitable fortitude in the venerable priest and scribe Eleazar,¹ ninety years of age, who declined all overtures of royal favour, and would not accept the offered deliverance, when he might have escaped death, even if he had made semblance of eating the unclean flesh placed before him by the persecutor; and turned his eyes from the king, and looked upward to Heaven with faith, and went joyfully to the rack, and was beaten to death upon it, rather than disobey the law of God.

Behold, brethren, that other aged priest Mattathias, rejecting the temptations of earthly honour, riches and favour, by which the emissaries of Antiochus allured him, and refusing to be called "the king's friend;"¹ see him fired with the holy zeal and courage of a Phinehas or a Gideon, for the faith and worship of God, and destroying the idolatrous altar at Modin, and saying "Though all the nations, that are under the king's dominion, obey him, and fall away every one from the religion of their fathers, yet will I and my sons and my brethren walk in the covenant of our fathers. We will not hearken to the king's words to go from our religion, either to the right hand or to the left." Behold him, with his dying words giving to his five children a father's benediction, and exhorting them to be loyal to their country and to their God,² and to remember the noble acts of

Joshua and Caleb, of Elijah and Daniel, and the three children at Babylon,¹ and to give their lives for the covenant of their fathers.²

Contemplate those five sons, obedient to their father's charge, and joining together with one heart and hand. Behold the generous self-sacrifice of the elder among them, submitting to the chieftainship of their younger brother, Judas Maccabeus, whom their father had appointed to be their leader. See that lion-hearted soldier of God, seeking for strength and courage and wisdom, in prayer to God, and in His Holy Word; and rallying a small but faithful band under his standard, and going forth to fight the Lord's battles. Look at his noble feats of holy and heroic daring, during the six years of his career in which he vanquished with a scanty force immense armies of Syria in many pitched battles, and recovered the City of Jerusalem, and went up with his faithful followers unto Mount Sion, where they wept when they saw the Sanctuary desolate,¹ and the gates burned up, and shrubs growing in the courts; and they blew an alarm with the trumpets, and renewed the Altar, and adorned the front of the Temple with crowns of gold and shields,² and restored the Candlestick and the Table of Shewbread, and offered up burnt-offerings with gladness, and burnt incense on the golden altar, and cleansed the Temple which had been profaned by idolatry, and celebrated with harps and cymbals the Feast of Dedication, which afterwards, in the fulness of time, was adorned by the presence of Christ, the Lord of the Temple Himself.¹

Yet further, this history not only presents examples of faith and fortitude and valour in reverend old age, and in ripe and vigorous manhood, in priestly families such as those of Eleazar and Mattathias, but also in tender youth and weak womanhood in secular life. Remember that heroic mother, who—in the presence of the royal persecutor Antiochus Epiphanes, commanding the instruments of torture, the fire and rack, to be prepared² for that fierce trial—encouraged her children to step forth on the burning coals, and to die for the Law of God in hope of a glorious resurrection. And when she had seen six of her sons tortured and slain before her eyes, she did not desire to reserve the seventh as a stay to her old age, but calmly exhorted him to "have pity" on her (wonderful words!) who had borne him in her womb and nursed him at her breasts, and not to shrink from the torture or to gain a reprieve from it, as the king urged her to do, by eating the unclean food, but to follow his six brethren and to die joyfully for God, that he might be joined with his brethren in glory, and that she might receive them all again as her own for everlasting life.¹ What, brethren, was this, but to say that life with cowardice and shame is not life but death, that deliverance from death by denial or desertion of the truth is worse than all death, and that death for the faith and worship of God is not to be feared, but rather to be gladly welcomed, as that which alone deserves the name of life? The young man gladly obeyed his mother's words, and the mother followed her seven sons, whom she had not lost but had sent before her to God; and thus they all gained together the crown of martyrdom, which they will wear for ever in heaven.

Such examples as these hold an unique place in Hebrew history. The Maccabees did not enjoy the privileges which had been vouchsafed of old to their fathers. In the Patriarchal age God had manifested Himself in dreams and visions. He had talked with Abraham and Jacob at Shechem and at Mamre, at Moriah and at Bethel, and had quickened their faith and cheered their hopes with personal promises. In the thousand years between Moses and Malachi, there never was a time without a prophet from God to encourage the Hebrew nation with messages from heaven. The Fathers had the Tabernacle and the Pillar of Cloud and Fire in the wilderness, and for many generations the prophetic light gleamed from the oracular jewels in the breastplate of the High Priest; and even when the Jewish captives hung their harps on the willows of Babylon, they were cheered by the prophetic voices of Ezekiel and of Daniel, the "man greatly beloved." The three children who were cast by Nebuchadnezzar into the furnace on the plain of Dura had One who cheered their side like unto the Son of God,¹ Who quenched the violence of the fire; and when Daniel was thrown into the den of lions God sent His angel to stop their mouths,² and the prophet sat unharmed among them. And after the return from Babylon the flagging energies of the Hebrew rulers and people were stirred by the fervent accents of Haggai the prophet and of Zechariah the son of Iddo,³ and were encouraged to build the Temple by glorious visions of Christ.

But in the days of the Maccabees there were no such heavenly visitings as these. The cloud of the Divine Presence had passed away for the Mercy-seat in the Holy of Holies;

the voice of prophecy was heard no more; the light of the Urim and Thummim was quenched. They were left in a spiritual solitude. The God of their fathers, Who had sent His angel to guard His aged prophet in the den of lions, vouchsafed no such heavenly messenger to the venerable priest and scribe Eleazar, to rescue him from the torture, or to that holy family at Modin when beleaguered by the Syrian soldiery. The God Who had raised the child of the widow of Sarepta by Elijah, and of the Shunamite by Elisha, and Who had protected the three children at Babylon by the Presence of the Son of God, despatched no such embassies of love for the deliverance of the seven children of that magnanimous mother in the days of the Maccabees at Jerusalem. They were left to suffer in silence, and no voice was heard from Heaven to cheer them.

This, brethren, it is which imparts a special interest to their history, and gives it a peculiar value for ourselves. We are like them. We have no visible supernatural helps. No Elijah or Elisha is manifest among us. No Ezekiel or Jeremiah comes forth with a voice of power to strengthen and comfort us. No Haggai or Malachi is sent with prophetic utterances to stimulate us to labour and to suffer for God. No angel from Heaven comes to stop the mouths of the lions in our trials and persecutions. No Son of God walks visibly by our side in the fiery furnace of the sufferings of these latter days. We are left to ourselves like Eleazar the aged priest in the full view of the rack. We are like Mattathias in the hour of peril which threatened the Hebrew Church. You, my younger brethren, are like his five sons; you are like those seven children of that intrepid mother who encouraged them to suffer for God, and who taught them to live in eternal glory by dying gladly for the faith.

But, thanks be to God, we are like the Maccabees, not only in what we have not, but in what we have. Are we to imagine, brethren, that Eleazar and Mattathias, and Judas Maccabeus and his brethren, and that noble-hearted mother with her seven sons, were less favoured by God than Daniel and the three children at Babylon, because they were not miraculously delivered by Him as they were, but died for His Law? Was God's arm shortened? Had the power and love of the Eternal and Unchangeable been weakened by time? Surely not. Daniel and the three children were rescued; and thus their history displays not only a bright example of faith and courage, but a practical evidence of the power of God to rescue His faithful and valiant servants in every age. Yet by that deliverance, Daniel and the three children were reserved for other trials, which they afterwards had to encounter. But the Maccabees (let us be allowed to adopt the general name) were delivered by God, not from death, but by death. They were freed from this death-like life of ours into that glorious life which never dies, and which we hope will be ours on the other side of the grave. They looked upon their death-day as their birth-day, their birth-day to life eternal, and they rejoiced in it as such.¹

Again; true it is, the Maccabees had no prophets visibly present among them. But they had the written Word of God which lives for ever; they had the abiding voice of prophecy. The Canon of the Old Testament was then completed. They heard it read in the Synagogues; they held it in their hands. It was the living and energizing power of the Divine Word, received into their hearts with faith, which by God's grace enabled them to do and suffer what they did and suffered.

It is not easy to say how it was, but certain it is, that when the entire volume of the Old

Testament was sealed, it beamed forth with new light, caught from the unseen world, and from visions of futurity, which cheered the hearts of those who then lived, with hopes sufficient for their need. It is a remarkable fact, clearly displayed in the speeches of the Maccabean martyrs and confessors, that they had a lively faith in the Immortality of the soul and in the Resurrection of the body,¹ and that they looked upon the grave not as a dreary place, but as a bright passage to that blessed region in which they would dwell for ever in glory.

Yet further. The Maccabees had another advantage, which was not vouchsafed in equal measure to their fathers, but is given also to us, and which stimulated them to act boldly and to suffer patiently and joyfully for the truth.

They had not prophets among them; but they themselves were the subject of prophecy. The three children in the furnace at Babylon had a Daniel near them, and they had the presence of the Son of God; and Daniel in the den of lions was protected by an angel from heaven. But their sufferings and trials had not been foretold by ancient prophecy. On the other hand, the Maccabees were not cheered by the personal presence of prophets, but they saw their own sufferings predicted in the sacred pages of Holy Scripture; they beheld them in the eighth and eleventh chapters of the Book of the Prophet Daniel. There they read the words, that "many of understanding would fall by the sword and by the flame," that is, would not be delivered, as the three children and Daniel had been, but would die as martyrs for the truth, and that their sufferings would not be for destruction, but "to try them, and purify them, and make them white,"¹ and that "the people who knew their God would be strong and do exploits."² They read also there, that this trial of persecution would only be for a short season, a time appointed by God, and that the persecutor would suddenly be cut off;³ and that at length the End would come, and that the Judgment would be set, and the Books be opened,⁴ and that many who slept in the dust of the earth should awake, "some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt," and that they who were "wise should shine as the brightness of the firmament, and that they who had turned many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever."¹

Here then is the answer to the question, How were the Maccabees enabled to act and suffer as they did? It was by faith in those glorious revelations. Their acts and sufferings are explained by the Book of Daniel; they are evidences of its Genuineness and Inspiration. His prophecy fits into their history, and their history fits into his prophecy; the one accounts for the other. They suffered gladly and joyfully the worst tortures, because they saw their own sufferings and victory foretold in that

Book, which they knew to be Divinely inspired ; and it is remarkable that the Maccabean confessors, who stood foremost in the struggle, were learned men, Scribes and Priests, such as Eleazar and Mattathias and his family, who were versed in the history of the Canon, and in the criticism of the Text of the Hebrew Scriptures, and whose judgment concerning the Book of Daniel is therefore of more value. They saw there a prediction of the sudden destruction of the persecutor, and beyond all the trials of the persecution, and beyond the term allotted by God to all earthly Empires, which would be broken into fragments by the stone cut out without hands, which is Christ, and be "scattered like chaff of the summer threshing-floor," they beheld in that prophecy a vision of the everlasting kingdom, the kingdom of Christ. They saw the Son of Man coming in the clouds of Heaven,¹ and the stream of fire issuing from His Throne, and the Resurrection of the dead, and the future Judgment of the World, and the everlasting glory reserved for those whose names were written in the Books, and who had contended and suffered for the truth. Belief in these truths produced the acts of the Maccabees; and therefore the Christian Fathers, in the writings already cited,² do not hesitate to speak of them as martyrs of Christ. They lived and died in faith; faith in the Resurrection of the body; faith in that everlasting bliss and glory which are due to the Incarnation of Christ and to His Passion; and which having been foreshadowed by types, and foretold by prophecies in the Old Testament, are now revealed in the New. Thus they were martyrs of Christ before Christ came into the world.

This again it is which makes their history to be full of interest and instruction to ourselves.

We also, brethren, who live in the latter days are like them, subjects of prophecy. The same Book, the Book of Daniel, which foretells the trials and persecutions of the Maccabees, foretells also ours. It forewarns us that there will "be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation."¹ And this is not all. It teaches us that the trials of the Maccabees in the days of Antiochus Epiphanes, are foreshadowings of the severer trials of the Christian Church in the last times. In the Maccabees we may recognize ourselves. In their temptations and sufferings we may see a vision of our own; and, if we have their faith, their courage, and patience, their noble contempt of ephemeral opinions, and of earthly honours, and temporal enjoyments, as compared with the Law of God and the glory of the world to come, then, thanks be to Him, in the victories of the Maccabees we may see a type and prophecy of our own victories also.

It is the opinion of the best expositors of the Book of Daniel, that—as the Psalmist in the seventy-second Psalm passes on immediately from Solomon to Christ, and thus leads us to regard Solomon as a type of Christ, and as our Blessed Lord in the twenty-fifth chapter of the Gospel of S. Matthew, passes immediately from a prophetic description of the judgment hanging over the city of Jerusalem to deliver a prophecy of His own future coming, and of the universal Judgment of quick and dead; and by this immediate transition, teaches us to regard the judgment of Jerusalem as a figure of the Judgment of the world—so, in like manner, the Holy Spirit, speaking by the Prophet Daniel in the eleventh chapter, and delivering a prophecy of the trials and sufferings which awaited the Hebrew Church in the days of Antiochus Epiphanes, and by proceeding immediately to predict the trials and sufferings which the Christian Church will have to endure in the latter days, teaches us by this process to regard the former as the type of the latter, and prepares us to see Antiochus Epiphanes reproduced with intensified energy and enlarged proportions in the workings of that Infidel Power which will precede the Coming of Christ, and will be utterly destroyed by it.¹

Therefore the peculiar characteristics of the sufferings of the Hebrew Church in the days of Antiochus, and the various forms of trial which she had to endure, deserve a careful analysis, not only on their own account, but as having an analogical character and a prophetic interest for ourselves. Time does not allow us to examine them now ; they must be reserved for consideration in the next discourse.

In the meanwhile, let us put to ourselves the following question—

If the Maccabees, to whom less was vouchsafed of spiritual grace and light than it is our privilege to enjoy, did and suffered what we know them to have done and suffered, can we imagine that there is any danger which they would not gladly have encountered, or any sacrifice they would not cheerfully have made, or any suffering which they would not joyfully have endured, for the sake of the faith which is now revealed to the Church of God ? If aged men, and tender children, and weak women, went cheerfully to the rack and to the flames, rather than taste food which was forbidden by God, how shall we be able to find any excuse or apology for ourselves, if, with our abundant measures of Divine knowledge, and gifts of grace, we fall short of their faith, patience, and courage ; and flag, falter, and faint in our confession of the truth as revealed to the Church of Christ ? They had only the Old Testament ; we have the Old and the New. They had only Moses and the Prophets, whose pages then shone faintly as in a dim twilight. We have Moses and the Prophets illumined by the noonday splendour of the Gospel, and we have Jesus Christ and His holy Apostles and Evangelists. They had Levitical ceremonies ; we have evangelical Sacraments. They had the shadows of good things to come ; we have the good things themselves. They had visitings of the Holy Ghost; we have the indwelling of the Comforter. Our bodies are temples of the Holy Ghost.¹ They had faith in the Resurrection of the body and eternal Life; and being strong in that belief, they looked tortures in the face and encountered death with joy. They did this before the Coming of Christ, when Sin had not been taken away by the Lamb of God, and when the bars and gates of Death were yet unbroken, and the Grave was an unknown place, and the world beyond it was like an unexplored sea, whence no navigator had returned, to report of its depths and shallows. But we have a chart of the unseen world. We have a compass to steer by. We have One at the helm Who has made the voyage. We have ever with us the presence of Him Who is the Resurrection and the Life. We have clear proof, and a practical pledge and earnest, of our own future Resurrection to glory, in the Resurrection and Ascension of Christ, Whose very members we are.

What therefore, brethren, shall we say ?

We have the example of the Maccabees ; and this example is itself a privilege such as they themselves had not, and which they, and those who have followed them for more than two thousand years, have now bequeathed to us.

They were the proto-martyrs of the Church of God : they led the van of that noble army. We have the assurance of spiritual strength from Christ and from the Holy Ghost. What Christian therefore,—to adopt the words of an ancient Father¹ preaching at Antioch on their Festival,—can look for pardon from God, if he shrinks from suffering for the Faith? And in the words of an African bishop,² may we not say,—“If we admire the Maccabees because they refused to touch those meats which Christians may now eat without scruple, but which were then forbidden by God, how much more ought we, who are Christians, to be ready to suffer all things for the sake of Christian Baptism and the Christian Eucharist, and the sign of Christ, inasmuch as the things which the Maccabees possessed were only promises of what was to be fulfilled thereafter, whereas what we possess are evidences of things which have been fulfilled already. For whatsoever is still promised to the Church—that is, to Christ's mystical Body—has been already fulfilled in Him Who is the Head of the Church, the Saviour Himself, the One Mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus.¹ For what are the things still future which are promised to us? What but eternal Life after the Resurrection from the dead? But Resurrection to Life eternal has already been fulfilled in that very human flesh which is worn by Him Who is our Incarnate Lord, and of Whom it is written, "The Word was made Flesh and dwelt among us."² In the days of the Maccabees the faith was shrouded with a veil, but now the veil hath been taken away, and the faith is clearly revealed, and the glory which is promised to the faithful, and will be given to them at the Judgment to come, is already accomplished in Christ, Who came not to destroy the Law and the Prophets, but to fulfil.”¹

Therefore, brethren, in times of trial, in days of distress, defection and dismay, let us think of the Maccabees. Let us read our own history there. Let us not consider what the World is saying, or the World is doing, or what the World is promising, or the World is giving, or what the World is threatening. But let us look up to God, Whose Eye is ever upon us. Let us look forward to the future. Let us behold the Son of Man coming in the clouds of Heaven in His glorious Majesty, to judge the quick and dead. Let us behold Him Who is "King of kings, and Lord of lords."¹ Let us look to the great White Throne,² and the Judgment set, and the Books³ opened, and ourselves called from our graves to stand before Him in the presence of an innumerable company of spectators, of holy Angels and beatified Saints, of Patriarchs, Prophets, Apostles and Evangelists, Martyrs and Confessors of every age. And then what will become of the World's opinions, the World's honours, the World's rewards, and the World's threatenings? The World will be judged by Christ. Therefore listen to His Voice, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the Crown of Life."³

DANIEL xii. 10

Many shall be purified and made white ; but the wicked shall do wickedly, and none of the wicked shall understand, but the wise shall understand.

IT was my endeavour last Sunday to commend to your attention the history of the Macabees. It was observed, that this history exhibits illustrious examples of noble daring and patient endurance for the cause of Divine Truth, and in defence of national Institutions, in days of peril and persecution.

It was remarked, that these specimens of valour and suffering were displayed at a period of Hebrew history when no prophet arose to strengthen and cheer the drooping spirit of the Nation; and that they were produced by faith in the written Word of God, especially Divine prophecy, by which those sufferings had been foretold; and that they afford evidence of the fulfilment of that prophecy, especially of the Book of Daniel, and thus supply a presumptive proof that his other prophecies concerning the trials of the latter days, and the final triumph of the Truth, and the dread realities of the General Resurrection, and the Universal Judgment of quick and dead, and the awful Majesty of Christ's Coming, and the everlasting glory of the faithful, will be fulfilled also.

Hence the following question arose for our consideration :—

If such were the fruits of the Word of God in the Old Testament, and if Faith in that Word produced such a rich harvest of noble and patient suffering in the Maccabean martyrs and confessors, before the Incarnation of Christ, and when the victory to be achieved, and the glory to be purchased, by His Resurrection and Ascension, were seen only in dim visions of the future; and when the gift of the Holy Ghost had not as yet been bestowed upon the Church; what excuse can be pleaded for those who possess the New Testament as well as the Old and who have the life-giving Sacraments of the Gospel, and the glory of the Resurrection, and Life Everlasting clearly displayed to them in the Resurrection and Ascension of Christ, and who show less faith, less courage, less zeal, less endurance and self-sacrifice for God and His Church, than the Maccabees did in the defence of those things which were but dim foreshadowings of those Evangelical substances which by God's mercy in Christ are now vouchsafed to ourselves ?

It was also observed, that the trials of the Maccabees, as foretold in the Book of Daniel, are prophetic and figurative of the trials which await the Christian Church in the latter days, and that they have thus a special interest for ourselves.

In continuation therefore of this subject, let us now proceed to analyze those trials, and then let us consider what warnings, instruction, and encouragements are supplied by them to us.

The sufferings of the Hebrew Church in the Days of the Maccabees—or, in other words, during the reign of her persecutor, Antiochus Epiphanes, king of Syria for nearly eleven years, from B.C. 175 to B.C. 164—were without a precedent in her history. They were trials of her faith in her religion. Her religion itself was the object of attack. Antiochus Epiphanes stands forth in the history of the Church of God as the first deliberate and systematic persecutor of His Truth and Worship, and as boldly avowing a design to sweep away every vestige of it from the face of the earth.

The secret springs of this impious purpose it is not easy to discover. We can readily comprehend why an ambitious monarch should invade a neighbouring province, and why a covetous prince should pillage an opulent

Temple in an ancient city, in order to aggrandize and enrich himself: but why, after he had done all this, he should proceed to compel the inhabitants of that province and city, and the worshippers in that Temple (as Antiochus Epiphanes endeavoured to force the Jews) to eat certain meats prohibited as unclean by their laws, and to give up the copies of their sacred books to be burnt, and to partake in idolatrous sacrifices, and to join in idolatrous processions; and why he should forbid them to circumcise their children, and to observe their sabbaths and holy days, and to offer the daily sacrifice; and why he should proceed to torture and to destroy thousands of them,—his own subjects,—if they refused to obey his commands and abandon their religion, and to adopt heathenism, for which he cared but little, it is not so easy to explain.

For my own part, I frankly confess, that I recognize here the working of the Evil One. We know from the Book of Daniel, that Powers of darkness, called the Princes of Persia and Media (that is, evil angels¹ who claimed dominion in these kingdoms, and who worked in them and by them against the kingdom of God), endeavoured by their means to hinder the restoration of the Temple and of the City of Jerusalem, and for this purpose strove against Michael the Archangel, the Champion of the Church of God. Satan knew that Christ was to come to that City and Temple; and therefore he thwarted the work. The agency of spiritual Powers warring against Christ and His Church is revealed to us more clearly in the Apocalypse; which is the sequel to, and completion of, the Book of Daniel. And we know from the prophecies of Daniel and S. John,¹ and from other portions of God's prophetic Word, that, as Satan tried to hinder Christ's first Advent to save the world, so he will do all in his power to prevent, or at least to postpone, Christ's second Advent to Judgment, which will be the signal for his own condemnation to his dark prison-house. He will endeavour to corrupt the Church by specious flatteries and worldly temptations, and secular influences, and at length will break out in open rage and furious persecution against the faithful soldiers of Christ.

It may reasonably be supposed, that in the days of Antiochus Epiphanes, when the time of the Incarnation was drawing near, the great Adversary of Christ and His Church was eager to wage a deadly warfare against the City and Temple of Jerusalem, to which it was foretold in Hebrew prophecy that Christ would come; and to destroy the sacred volume of the Old Testament, which witnessed of Christ; and to exterminate the Levitical ritual, which in all its offerings and sacrifices foreshadowed the One Great Sacrifice, by which the world would be redeemed.

The times and character of Antiochus Epiphanes were favourable to that design of the Evil One.

The victories of Alexander the Great had diffused the language and literature of Greece. Palestine lay between two Greek kingdoms, Syria on the north, and Egypt on the south.¹ Greek influences filtered from both of them into it. Greek conquests, Greek commerce, Greek philosophy, Greek poetry, Greek rhetoric, Greek arts, Greek religion, with their fascinating allurements, conspired to Hellenize Palestine. Thus the Hebrew Church and Nation were exposed to a severer, because a more subtle, trial than they had to endure from the arms of Assyria under Sennacherib, or from those of Babylon under Nebuchadnezzar. Their Faith and Worship were menaced by dangers similar to those (but far exceeding them in intensity) which threatened the Christian Church in Italy in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries after Christ, at Florence and at Rome, in the days of the Medicean Princes and Pontiffs, especially of Leo X., when a refined Paganism, with all the graceful charms of classical literature and ancient art, almost supplanted Christianity, and flung the fair drapery and picturesque mantle of elegant scholarship and artistic beauty over libertinism and scepticism in the Church.¹

Antiochus Epiphanes was a person well fitted to do the work of the Evil One. He had spent seven years at Rome, and seems to have acquired a many-sided versatility from his residence there.¹ On his brother's death he usurped the throne of Syria, which belonged by right to his nephew. He is characterized in the prophecy of Daniel² as "a vile person," or rather, a despicable one. Not that he was deficient in intellectual ability, or in military skill and prowess; but he had no gravity, seriousness, or earnestness, no faith, no enthusiasm, no love of what is grand, noble, beautiful and true. He was a clever mimic,¹ a witty jester, a scurrilous buffoon; he is described as casting off all royal dignity and common decency, even in religious festivals (especially that magnificent one which he celebrated at Antioch² almost at the close of his life), and as playing the part of a menial lacquey in the crowd, and as capering with ludicrous antics and grotesque pranks and grimaces like an actor of low farces and burlesques, for the diversion of his own subjects. And yet he was a lavish prodigal,³ sometimes showering handfuls of money about him in the streets, a sumptuous exhibitor of splendid shows and gladiatorial spectacles,¹ and withal a sensual libertine, a heartless sceptic and bold scoffer; a sacrilegious spoiler of temples,² and a ruthless persecutor of the Church of God, and exulting in the sufferings of his victims who were tortured to death before his face.

Such was Antiochus Epiphanes.

But he would have had no power against the Hebrew Church and Nation, if their rulers, priests and people had been true to God and to themselves.

¹ Liv. xli. 25: "Spectaculorum omnis generis magnificentia superiores reges vicit." Livy describes the taste of Antiochus for the savage spectacles of gladiatorial conflicts; which probably predisposed him to look with complacency on the sufferings of those Hebrew Martyrs who were tortured by him at Jerusalem.

² He died in a campaign which he undertook into Persia, in order to plunder a heathen temple. 1 Macc. vi. 1, 2.

This had been shewn in the age immediately preceding Antiochus Epiphanes. Ptolemy Philopator, king of Egypt, the conqueror of Antiochus the Great the father of Antiochus Epiphanes, had attempted to enter the Holy of Holies¹ at Jerusalem, but he was encountered and withstood by the vigorous resistance of the priests, encouraged by the exhortations and prayers of the faithful high-priest Simon, and was smitten with paralysis in the attempt.² Enraged by this repulse, he afterwards persecuted the Jews,³ but they remained loyal to God, and were protected and rescued by Him.

Again, in the year before the accession of Antiochus Epiphanes, when a certain time-serving Jew named Simon, the captain of the Temple, being jealous of the good high-priest Onias, had reported to Seleucus, king of Syria, that a large sum of money had been amassed by the Jews, and was laid up in the Temple, and Heliodorus was sent by Seleucus to pillage it, Onias the high-priest stood firm, and gathered the priests and people together to join in prayer to God, and Heliodorus was suddenly seized with panic and alarm, and fled from the Temple in dismay.¹

Thus it had been proved, that if the priests, rulers, and people of the Hebrew Nation had remained faithful to God, the powers of Egypt and of Syria would not be able to harm it.

But at the accession of Antiochus Epiphanes

a change came over Jerusalem. The faithful high-priest Onias, the son of the faithful Simon, had two brothers. Both of these were disloyal to their country and their Church. They were allured by the flatteries of the Syrian king Antiochus. Greek influences insinuated themselves stealthily into their moral and spiritual being. The dogmas of the Hebrew Creed, the precepts of the Hebrew Law, the ordinances of the Hebrew Ritual, seemed to them to be galling restrictions of a slavish bondage, and worn-out badges of a superannuated bigotry. There was, they thought, an air of genial freedom, freshness and joyousness, in the atmosphere of Greek civilization. They made up their minds that Jerusalem must be Hellenized, in order to accommodate itself to the spirit of the age.

“Let us go,” they said, “and make a covenant with the heathen that are round about us.”¹ They who were her priests would shew their so-called superior illumination, and would set the example. One of them called Joshua, or Jesus, laid aside his Hebrew name, and assumed the Greek appellation of the Argonautic hero Jason: his brother Onias adopted the high-sounding name of the Lacedæmonian chief Menelaus.² Another example of the same Hellenizing process displayed itself afterwards in his successor in the priesthood, Joachim, who Grecized his name into Alcimus. The first of these three high-priests, Jason, supplanted his own brother, the virtuous high-priest, by means of bribes to Antiochus.¹ He set at nought the Divine Law concerning succession and ordination to the Hebrew Priesthood, and in order to ingratiate himself with the Syrian king, he requested permission to erect a Greek gymnasium at Jerusalem, and to train the Hebrew youth in its exercises;² and he assured Antiochus that the Jews were weary of their own national laws, and wished to give up their Hebrew franchises and to be enrolled as citizens of Antioch. Many of the priests had no longer any heart to serve at the Altar, but forsook their sacred calling and apostatized from their religion, and adopted the fashions of the heathen. Many of the people denied their circumcision.¹ The high-priest of Jerusalem, Jason, made a public display of his so-called freedom from the trammels of prejudice, by sending an embassy to Phoenicia, to communicate with the Tyrian Hercules by an offering to that deity, at a religious quinquennial festival which was celebrated there by Antiochus. The example of Jason was imitated by his brother Menelaus, who, being employed by Jason to convey his tribute to Antiochus, availed himself of that opportunity for supplanting Jason in the high priesthood, by a larger bribe to Antiochus, as Jason had supplanted his more virtuous brother Onias.¹ One priestly concession and compromise was followed by another. Jason had opened the City of Jerusalem to Antiochus, but Menelaus led him into the Temple itself. The king plundered it of its sacred vessels and treasures, and profaned the Sanctuary with the sacrifices of unclean animals.²

And what, brethren, was the consequence? Almighty God forsook the Temple, which had been betrayed by its own priests, and He punished them by means of that heathen power which they themselves had courted and caressed.³

Antiochus having been driven from Egypt by the Romans (as Daniel had foretold¹), and being vexed and exasperated by this indignity, wreaked his fury on the Jews. Apollonius, his treasurer, whom he had sent to spoil the city, took many captives and made great havoc in Jerusalem, and planted a Syrian fortress there, and laid waste the Sanctuary.² A certain Athenian was sent by Antiochus to force the Jews to forsake their religion,³ and he changed the name of the Temple of the Lord

Grecians best of all ; by reason whereof sore calamity came upon them, for they had them to be their enemies whose customs they followed so earnestly, and unto whom they desired to be like in all things, for it is not a light thing to do wickedly against the Law of God."

and dedicated it to Zeus Olympius, and defiled it with revelry and license. The Priests had Hellenized themselves; why should not the Greeks imitate them and Hellenize the Temple also?

Antiochus himself came to Jerusalem, and endeavoured utterly to uproot its faith and worship. He burnt the copies of the Scriptures, and put to death those who possessed them;¹ he forbade the Jews to observe the Sabbaths and Festivals, and prohibited circumcision, and slew mothers who circumcised their children,² and took away the daily sacrifice, as Daniel had prophesied,³ and commanded them to eat unclean meats on pain of death for refusal; and to walk in processions bearing the ivy-tufted thyrsus in honour of Dionysus,¹ and erected heathen altars in the streets of Jerusalem, and placed an idolatrous altar on the Altar of Jehovah itself, and offered heathen sacrifices on that Altar, and thus fulfilled the prophecy of Daniel,² that he would set up the "abomination of desolation;" that is, an abomination which made the Temple desolate, by driving devout worshippers from it, and by depriving it of the Presence of God.

Then it was that those noble examples of holy heroism were displayed, which were described in the last discourse.³ Then Eleazar the venerable Scribe and Priest—ninety years of age—went boldly to the rack, in defence of the Law of God.¹ Then that courageous mother exhorted her seven sons to choose life eternal and a glorious resurrection by dying for that Law, rather than accept the offer of a death-like life of shame by breaking it.² Then the valiant priest Mattathias, on his deathbed charged his five sons to be loyal to God and their country. Then one of those five sons, Judas Maccabeus, with a scanty band,³ did glorious feats by faith in God, and by prayer and fasting and meditation on God's Word, and routed the armies of Antiochus, and recovered Jerusalem, and cleansed the Sanctuary, and set up the Altar anew, and celebrated the Feast of Dedication with great joy and gladness.¹ This was in the winter of the year B.C. 165. In the following spring the Persecutor himself was suddenly cut off. In the prophetic words of Daniel he was "broken without hand,"² that is, not by human power, but by the visitation of God; he died a wretched and loathsome death in a far-off land, racked by tortures of body and soul.

Such was the end of Antiochus Epiphanes.

The priestly instruments of his crafty policy and cruel persecutions shared a like wretched fate. The high-priest Jason fled to the Ammonites, and afterwards died an exile in Greece, without a friend to mourn for him or bury him.¹ The high-priest Menelaus was put to death by the son of Antiochus himself, with a punishment suited to sacrilege.² The high-priest Alcimus, who had thwarted the valiant Judas Maccabeus, and accused him as a traitor,³ was suddenly smitten by palsy when pulling down the wall of the Temple, and opening the Sanctuary to the heathen.

Such was the end of these renegade priests who betrayed the cause of God and His Church.

selves. Sacred prophecy leads us to expect that the times of Antiochus Epiphanes will be reproduced in the latter days. The Prophet Daniel, having foretold the one proceeds at once to speak of the other ; he joins them together in one grand prophetic picture ; the one forms the background of the other. He does not conceal from us that the trials of the former will be intensified in the latter. "Then," he says, "there shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation."¹ Our Blessed Lord and His Apostles confirm this testimony.²

What then shall we say ?

In reading the history of the Maccabees let us observe that all the miseries of the Hebrew

Church and Nation were from within. As long as they were true to God, He helped and defended them. The attacks of Philopator and Seleucus recoiled upon the aggressors. The Jewish priests and people overcame their foes by faith. But a spiritual degeneracy ensued. It began with the priests. They were fascinated by the attractions of worldly popularity, ease and luxury, and by the allurements of a specious secularism and spurious liberalism. They loved to make ingenious compromises between the Church and the World. They wished to be priests of the former and yet votaries of the latter; they would assimilate the one to the other. The consequence was that God withdrew His grace from them, and darkened their intellectual and spiritual vision. Then their faith in their religion languished, their moral courage failed, their inner life was blighted, cankered and withered; they were ashamed of the great and glorious doctrines of the old Hebrew Creed, and were weary of the prophetic ordinances of the old Hebrew Ritual; they longed to cast them aside as trammels of a servile vassalage and as relics of an obsolete superstition; and they endeavoured to accommodate themselves with elastic pliancy to the ideas and fashions of Syria and Greece. They Grecized their own names and desired to Hellenize Hebraism. They had no belief in their own priestly office; no heart for the solemn worship in which they were appointed to officiate; no reverence for the Holy Scriptures which they held in their hand;

no relish for the sacred prayers and praises which they uttered with their lips. They were lovers of the world and of themselves rather than lovers of God; they craved the applause of the world rather than His approval. They sought to promote their own interests rather than His glory. They endeavoured to ingratiate themselves with a secular and heathen power for their own aggrandizement; and after a series of cowardly compromises, in which they sacrificed the doctrine, the discipline, and the ritual of the Church of God, they at last openly communicated with heathenism itself.

No wonder that God forsook the sanctuary which His priests had profaned, and gave it up to the heathen. As Daniel the prophet had foretold "the transgressors had come to the full."¹ In the words of the same prophet, Antiochus "had intelligence with those who forsook the holy covenant,"² and by their means "he prospered and practised and destroyed the holy people."³ God punished the apostasy of the priests by the agency of him whom they had flattered. The Syrian king raged against the Hebrew Church with ruthless fury, and set up the abomination of desolation in the Temple of Jerusalem, and endeavoured utterly to extirpate the faith and worship of the Most High.

Here are warnings for ourselves. Our dangers are from within. If the Priests of God's Church stand firm, nothing can harm her, she will be safe against her enemies, as the Hebrew Church was safe against Syria and Egypt in the days of her faithful high-priests, Simon and Onias. Suffer therefore the questions,—Are we prepared, with God's help, to maintain the faith of Christ, whole and undefiled, and to contend earnestly for it? Are we looking to Him for strength? Do we act in the belief that “every good and perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of Lights?”¹ Do we rely on God's grace vouchsafed to the faithful in prayer, public and private, and in devout meditation on His Holy Word, and in the reception of the Blessed Sacraments? Do we labour for His glory as the paramount aim and end of our being? Do we live and move in the atmosphere of a clear persuasion that the world's wisdom¹ is different from God's wisdom, and that we must become as little children if we are to enter His Kingdom;² and that "he that winneth souls is wise;"³ and "they that are wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever?"⁴

Such questions as these might not unfitly be addressed to the whole English Church. But time does not allow us to take so wide a range. Let us limit our field of view. Gathered together here to-day in the Church of an ancient University, let us inquire in a spirit of dutiful loyalty and reverential love,

Sacraments which we there administer, and in the Creeds and Prayers in which we there join? Or are we like those recreant priests of Jerusalem, Jason, Menelaus, and Alcimus, ready to barter away the sacred doctrines and the holy ritual which are committed to our charge, and which are treasures far more precious than all the silver and golden vessels stored in the Temple at Jerusalem, which they surrendered to Antiochus? Are we ashamed of the Christian heritage received from our pious forefathers as if it were a badge of slavery or vestige of superstition? Are we eager to Hellenize ourselves? Are we ready to destroy the fences of our Christian faith and discipline, and to remove those religious safeguards which guarantee the Christian character of these venerable Institutions, and protect the rising generation of England against the pernicious teaching of heresy and unbelief?¹ Are we ¹ The allegation that religious tests may be abrogated in our Colleges and Universities because they are taken by some who do not hold the doctrines expressed by them, might be urged equally well against all subscriptions to Creeds, Articles, and Confessions of Faith in the Church itself, and if carried out to its legitimate consequences would, under the pretence of liberty, degrade the congregations of the Church of England to a state of slavery, and expose them to the danger of being tyrannized over by a freethinking Clergy.

If religious tests are taken by freethinkers, there is this beneficial result at least from the tests, even in their case, that the freethinkers who take them are self-condemned, which is the proper penalty of heresy (Titus iii. 11), and they make shipwreck of their moral character, and thus their influence for evil is neutralized. Besides, though some freethinkers may be hypocrites, yet all are not so, and many are prevented by the restraining action of religious tests in Colleges from instilling their sceptical tenets into the minds of those who are sent by their Parents to the English Universities in the confident hope that they will be there trained in the Christian Faith. If religious tests are abrogated in our Colleges, Parents will have no guarantee that the sons sent by them to English Universities may not be required to listen to lectures on divinity from the lips of unbelievers, or on the Greek Testament from some who may use their position as a vantage-ground for shaking the faith of their hearers in the Godhead of Christ and in the Inspiration of Holy Scripture. The history of theological teaching and biblical criticism in the Universities of Germany may warn us of our own dangers in this respect. The real questions at issue are—Is there such a thing as Religious Truth? and are the Universities bound to teach it? If so, then the present prevalence of Unbelief is the trial of the faith of the believer; and will exercise and prove his moral courage in endeavouring to maintain those religious tests which remind the Universities of their duty, and which help them to perform it.

did, and to unite in the most solemn mysteries of Christian worship with those who deny the Godhead of Christ, and who teach others to do so? Are we ready to imitate the high-priest Menelaus, who opened the Sanctuary to the enemy and allowed him to profane it? Are we willing to follow the example of the high-priest Alcimus who disparaged the holy valour of Judas Maccabeus as impolitic zeal, and censured his heroic piety as disloyalty to the secular power? Are we inclined to imitate him, and to pull down the wall of partition which separates the Church from the World, and to change our seminaries of sound learning and religious education into mere literary and scientific Athenæums, and to transform these spiritual

Gymnasia, in which for many generations the youth of Christian England have been trained in holy discipline, and have been anointed with the spiritual unction of the Holy Ghost, in order that they may be able to wrestle¹ against principalities and powers, and against the rulers of the darkness of this world, and against spiritual wickedness in high places, and to win unfading crowns of heavenly glory—into mere secular Palæstras, like those of the Syrian Antioch, which the high-priest Jason set up beneath the shadow of the Temple at Jerusalem, and which, though adorned with fair painting and sculpture, and embellished with the bright imagery of earthly beauty, had no visions of Divine Truth, no light from Heaven, and no hopes of Immortality.

Alas for us, brethren, if this be so! The results of such a secularizing process are not difficult to conjecture. We, who are God's priests, may flatter the World, and the World for a time may flatter us, in order to win us to itself. It will deal with us as Antiochus dealt with Jason and Menelaus, and as his son dealt with Alcimus. When it has gained us, it will despise us. In the wretched end of those unhappy priests¹ we may see our own. God will withdraw His grace from us, He will chastise us by means of that antichristian World which we have courted and caressed. He will raise up some modern Antiochus to persecute the Church which we have betrayed and secularized, and to take away the daily sacrifice, and to set up an abomination of desolation in the Sanctuary of our Jerusalem.

But, God be thanked, this history of the Maccabees has not only its warnings but its encouragements. It not only displays to us disloyal and treacherous priests, such as Jason, Menelaus, and Alcimus, but it also exhibits to us true-hearted and valiant priests, such as Eleazar, Mattathias, Judas Maccabeus and his brethren. In the words of Daniel,¹ "they were holpen with a little help." Here is a comfort for us. God can save by a few. "How often," says a great English statesman of the last century,²

“has public calamity been arrested on the very brink of ruin by the energy of a single man! I am as sure as I am of my being, that one vigorous man, confiding in the aid of God, with a just reliance on his own fortitude, would first draw to him some few like himself and then that multitudes hardly thought to be in existence would appear and troop around him. Why” (he adds) “should not a Maccabeus and his brethren arise to assert the honour of the ancient law, and to defend the temple of their forefathers, with as ardent a spirit as can inspire any innovator to destroy the monuments, the piety and the glory, of the ancient ages?”

Yes, my younger brethren, Judas Maccabeus and his faithful band, though they were few in number, overcame the vast forces of the enemy and delivered the Church of God. And though some of them fell on the field of battle, yet they were more than conquerors. They did not estimate glory by ephemeral applause, and by temporary success in this world; they overcame in death and by death, they conquered death itself, because they had faith in God's word spoken by Daniel that their sufferings were appointed them by Him to purify them and make them white,¹ and to prepare them for a glorious Resurrection and a Blessed Immortality.

So may it be with us. Our times were foreshadowed by theirs. They are described by Daniel; "There shall be a time of trouble," he says, "such as never was since there was a nation." But, he adds, "at that time shall thy people be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the Book.'

Let us then not be staggered by the present prevalence of Unbelief. Unbelief ought to strengthen our faith, for it is foretold in Holy Scripture; "When the Son of Man cometh shall He find faith on the earth?"² Let us not be perplexed by the popular impatience of Creeds and Catechisms, and Formularies of Faith. This too ought to strengthen our belief; for this also is foretold in Scripture; "The time will come," says S. Paul, "when men will not endure sound doctrine, but will heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears, and shall turn away their ears from the truth."³ Here then is another reason for belief in Scripture and for obedience to its commands, "Hold fast the form of sound words, fight the good fight of faith."¹ Remember also that Daniel foretold the sudden destruction of the persecutor of the Hebrew Church, whom the world called Epiphanes, or "illustrious," but whom Holy Scripture calls 'a vile or despicable person.'² The world's Epiphanes is God's vile one. What is "highly esteemed among men is abomination in the sight of God?"³ "Many that are first shall be last."⁴ Daniel's prophecy was fulfilled in him; you know his wretched end.⁵ And the same prophet has foretold the utter destruction of all enemies of Christ. He has revealed to us the glory and the majesty and the victory of His Second Coming, and the everlasting bliss of those who have remained faithful to Him in times of trial, and have suffered gladly for Him.¹

³ 2 Tim. iv. 3, 4.

Lastly, the heroic mother in this history, who encouraged her seven sons to die joyfully for the truth, and who gladly followed those seven sons whom she had sent before her to God, has been well compared by an ancient Christian Father,² to the Church of Christ, exhorting her children to contend valiantly, and to suffer patiently, for the Faith. "O my sons, have pity on me," said that courageous mother—"have pity on me who have borne you in my womb and nursed you at my breasts." So says the Church to you. Do not forsake her. Do not desert those who have gone before you in the path of suffering and of glory. Do not prefer a shameful life of cowardice and treachery to the unfading crown of Martyrdom for God. Do not prefer popular errors to unpopular truths. The Faith's worst defeats are far more glorious than the World's noblest victories. Whenever the Antichristianism of these latter days endeavours to allure you with its smiles, and beguile you with its flatteries, or appal you with its menaces, or wither you with its scorn, or persecute you with its fury, be not moved thereby, but raise your eyes calmly upward with faith and prayer to God; see Christ your loving Saviour standing at His right hand to succour you and to receive you to Himself. Behold Him coming in the clouds of Heaven to raise the dead from their graves and to call the world to Judgment. See the Books opened, and the great White Throne set, and yourself standing before it. And may the gracious promise be yours that was vouchsafed to Daniel the "man greatly beloved," "Go thy way till the end be, for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days." ¹

The Psalms. Translated from the Hebrew.

With Notes, chiefly Exegetical. By WILLIAM KAY, D.D., Rector of Great Leghs, late Principal of Bishop's College, Calcutta. Second Edition. 8vo. 12s. 6d.

"Like a sound Churchman, he reverences Scripture, upholding its authority against sceptics; and he does not denounce such as differ from him in opinion with a dogmatism unhappily too common at the present day. Hence, readers will be disposed to consider his conclusions worthy of attention; or perhaps to adopt them without inquiry. It is superfluous to say that the translation is better and more accurate on the whole than our received one, or that it often reproduces the sense of the original happily."—ATHENÆUM.

"Dr. Kay has profound reverence for Divine truth, and exhibits considerable reading, with the power to make use of it."—BRITISH QUARTERLY REVIEW.

"The execution of the work is careful and scholarly."—UNION REVIEW.

"To mention the name of Dr. Kay is enough to secure respectful attention to his new translation of the Psalms. It is enriched with exegetical notes containing a wealth of sound learning, closely occasionally, perhaps too closely condensed. Good care is taken of the student not learned in Hebrew; we hope the Doctor's example will prevent any abuse of this consideration, and stimulate those who profit by it to follow him into the very text of the ancient Revelation."—JOHN BULL.

Ecclesiastes: the Authorized Version, with a running Commentary and Paraphrase. By the Rev. THOS.
PELHAM DALE, M.A., Rector of St. Vedast with St. Michael
City of London, and late Fellow of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. 8vo. 7s. 6d.

Daniel the Prophet: Nine Lectures delivered in the Divinity School of the University of Oxford.
With copious Notes. By the Rev. E. B. PUSEY, D.D., Regius
Professor of Hebrew, Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. Third Edition. 8vo. 10s. 6d.

Commentary on the Minor Prophets;
with Introductions to the several Books. By the Rev. E. B.
PUSEY, D.D., Regius Professor of Hebrew, Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 4to.

Parts I., II., III., IV., V., 5s. each.

and at Oxford and Cambridge

A Companion to the Old Testament;

being a Plain Commentary on Scripture History, down to the Birth of our Lord. Small 8vo. 3s. 6d.

Also in 2 Parts :

Part I.—The Creation of the World to the Reign of Saul.

Part II.—The Reign of Saul to the Birth of Our Lord.

Small 8vo. 2s. each.

[Especially adapted for use in Training Colleges and Schools.]

"A very compact summary of the Old Testament narrative, put together so as to explain the connection and bearing of its contents, and written in a very good tone; with a final chapter on the history of the Jews between the Old and New Testaments. It will be found very useful for its purpose. It does not confine itself to merely chronological difficulties, but comments briefly upon the religious bearing of the text also."—GUARDIAN.

"A most admirable Companion to the Old Testament, being far the most concise yet complete commentary on Old Testament history with which we have met. Here are combined orthodoxy and learning, an intelligent and at the same time interesting summary of the leading facts of the sacred story. It should be a text-book in every school, and its value is immensely enhanced by the copious and complete index."—JOHN BULL.

"This will be found a very valuable aid to the right understanding of the Bible. It throws the whole Scripture narrative into one from the creation downwards, the author thus condensing Prideaux, Shuckford, and Russell, and in the most reverential manner bringing to his aid the writings of all modern annotators and chronologists. The book is one that should have a wide circulation amongst teachers and students of all denominations."—BOOKSELLER.

"The handbook before us is so full and satisfactory, considering its compass, and sets forth the history of the old covenant with such conscientious minuteness, that it cannot fail to prove a godsend to candidates for examination in the Rudimenta Religionis as well as in the corresponding school at Cambridge. . . . Enough has been said to express our value of this useful work, which cannot fail to win its way into our schools, colleges, and universities."—ENGLISH CHURCHMAN.

A Companion to the New Testament.

Uniform with "A Companion to the Old Testament." Small 8vo.

Commentary on the Book of Isaiah,

Critical, Historical, and Prophetical: including a Revised English Translation. With Introduction and Appendices on the Nature of Scripture Prophecy, the Life and Times of Isaiah, the Genuineness of the later Prophecies, the Structure and History of the whole Book, the Assyrian History in Isaiah's days, and various difficult passages. By the Rev. T. R. BIRKS, M.A., Vicar of Holy Trinity, Cambridge. 8vo. 12s.

Waterloo Place, London

A Key to the Narrative of the Four

Gospels. By the Rev. JOHN PILKINGTON NORRIS, M.A., Canon of Bristol, and formerly one of H.M. Inspectors of Schools. New Edition. Small 8vo. 2s. 6d.

Forming a Volume of "Keys to Christian Knowledge."

"This is very much the best book of its kind we have seen. The only fault is its shortness, which prevents its going into the details which would support and illustrate its statements, and which, in the process of illustrating them, would fix them upon the minds and memories of its readers. It is, however, a great improvement upon any book of its kind we know. It bears all the marks of being the condensed work of a real scholar, and of a divine too. The bulk of the book is taken up with a 'Life of Christ,' compiled from the Four Gospels, so as to exhibit its steps and stages and salient points. The rest of the book consists of independent chapters on special points."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"This book is no ordinary compendium, no mere 'cram-book;' still less is it an ordinary reading-book for schools; but the schoolmaster, the Sunday-school teacher, and the seeker after a comprehensive knowledge of Divine truth will find it worthy of its name. Canon Norris writes simply, reverently, without great display of learning, giving the result of much careful study in a short compass, and adorning the subject by the tenderness and honesty with which he treats it. We hope that this little book will have a very wide circulation, and that it will be studied; and we can promise that those who take it up will not readily put it down again."—RECORD.

"This is a golden little volume. Its design is exceedingly modest. Canon Norris writes primarily to help 'younger students' in studying the Gospels. But this unpretending volume is one which all students may study with advantage. It is an admirable manual for those who take Bible Classes through the Gospels. Closely sifted in style, so that all is clear and weighty; full of unostentatious learning, and pregnant with suggestion; deeply reverent in spirit, and altogether Evangelical in spirit; Canon Norris's book supplies a real want, and ought to be welcomed by all earnest and devout students of the Holy Gospels."—LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW.

A Key to the Narrative of the Acts of the Apostles. By the Rev. JOHN PILKINGTON NORRIS, M.A., Canon of Bristol, and formerly one of H.M. Inspectors of Schools. New Edition. Small 8vo. 2s. 6d.

Forming a Volume of "Keys to Christian Knowledge."

"The book is one which we can heartily recommend."—SPECTATOR.

"Few books have ever given us more unmix'd pleasure than this."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"This is a sequel to Canon Norris's 'Key to the Gospels,' which was published two years ago, and which has become a general favourite with those who wish to grasp the leading features of the life and work of Christ. The sketch of the Acts of the Apostles is done in the same style; there is the same reverent spirit and quiet enthusiasm running through it, and the same instinct for seizing the leading points in the narrative."—RECORD.

"There is not a better companion to be found for the season than the beautiful 'Devotional Commentary on the Gospel Narrative,' by the Rev. Isaac Williams. A rich mine for devotional and theological study."—GUARDIAN.

"So infinite are the depths and so innumerable the beauties of Scripture, and more particularly of the Gospels, that there is some difficulty in describing the manifold excellences of Williams' exquisite Commentary. Deriving its profound appreciation of Scripture from the writings of the early Fathers, it is only what every student knows must be true to say, that it extracts a whole wealth of meaning from each sentence, each apparently faint allusion, each word in the text."

—CHURCH REVIEW.

"Stands absolutely alone in our English literature; there is, we should say, no chance of its being superseded by any better book of its kind; and its merits are of the very highest order."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"This is, in the truest sense of the word, a 'Devotional Commentary' on the Gospel narrative, opening out everywhere, as it does, the spiritual beauties and blessedness of the Divine message; but it is something more than this, it meets difficulties almost by anticipation, and throws the light of learning over some of the very darkest passages in the New Testament."—ROCK.

"It would be difficult to select a more useful present, at a small cost, than this series would be to a young man on his first entering into Holy Orders, and many, no doubt, will avail themselves of the republication of these useful volumes for this purpose. There is an abundance of sermon material to be drawn from any one of them."—CHURCH TIMES.

Female Characters of Holy Scripture.

"This is one of the few volumes of published sermons that we have been able to read with real pleasure. They are written with a chastened elegance of language, and pervaded by a spirit of earnest and simple piety. Mr. Williams is evidently what would be called a very High Churchman. Occasionally his peculiar Church views are apparent; but bating a few passages here and there, these sermons will be read with profit by all 'who profess and call themselves Christians.'"—CONTEMPORARY REVIEW.

"A more masterly analysis of Scriptural characters we never read, nor any which is more calculated to impress the mind of the reader with feelings of love for what is good, and abhorrence for what is evil."—ROCK.

THE DEVOUT LIFE. By S. FRANCIS DE SALES. A New Translation.

Other Volumes are in Preparation.

It is hoped that the "Library of Spiritual Works for English Catholics," which will comprise translations, compilations, and other works, will meet a need which has long been felt. As the devotional life of the Church of England has increased, so the demand for spiritual treatises has become more and more urgent, and has arisen from all classes of society. This series of books, some well-known, some already oftentimes translated, and others, it may be, yet to be presented for the first time in an English dress, is intended to meet this want.

The aim of the translators is twofold. First, to provide the reader with a fair rendering of the original as far as possible unmutilated. It has been a common complaint of late, that translations have been marred by the absence of parts of the original, the exclusion of which a more intelligent view of Catholic devotion in the present day has rendered unnecessary. In these editions these omissions have been to a great extent supplied ; yet at the same time any term or expression which may come under the imputation of being "un-English" has been reduced, as far as may be without destroying the thought, to its equivalent in Anglican phraseology and belief. Secondly, to translate the original into ordinary English, and thus to avoid the antiquated and stilted style of writing, which often makes books of this kind distasteful, or even sometimes unintelligible.

The Star of Childhood: a First Book of Prayers and Instruction for Children. Compiled by a Priest. Edited by the Rev. T. T. CARTER, M.A., Rector of Clewer, Berks. With Illustrations reduced from Engravings by FRA ANGELICO. Second Edition. Royal 16mo. 2s. 6d.

"All the instructions, all of the Hymns, and most of the Prayers here are excellent. And when we use the cautionary expression 'most of the,' &c., we do not mean to imply that all the prayers are not excellent in themselves, but only to express a doubt whether in some cases they may not be a little too elaborate for children. Of course it by no means follows that when you use a book you are to use equally every portion of it; what does not suit one may suit a score of others, and this book is clearly compiled on the comprehensive principle. But to give a veracious verdict on the book it is needful to mention this. We need hardly say that it is well worth buying, and of very high order of merit."

—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"Messrs. Rivington have sent us a manual of prayers for children, called 'The Star of Childhood,' edited by the Rev. T. T. Carter, a very full collection, including instruction as well as devotion, and a judicious selection of hymns."—CHURCH REVIEW.

"The Rev. T. T. Carter, of Clewer, has put forth a much-needed and excellent book of devotions for little children, called 'The Star of Childhood.'"

—MONTHLY PACKET.

"One amongst the books before us deserves especial notice, entitled 'The Star of Childhood,' and edited by the Rev. T. T. Carter; it is eminently adapted for a New Year's Gift. It is a manual of prayer for children, with hymns, litanies, and instructions. Some of the hymns are illustrative of our Lord's life; and to these are added reduced copies from engravings of Fra Angelico."—PENNY POST.

"Supposing a child to be capable of using a devotional manual, the book before us is, in its general structure, as good an attempt to meet the want as could have been put forth. In the first place it succeeds, where so many like efforts fail, in the matter of simplicity. The language is quite within the compass of a young child; that is to say, it is such as a young child can be made to understand; for we do not suppose that the book is intended to be put directly into his hands, but through the hands of an instructor."—CHURCH BELLS.

"To the same hand which gave us the 'Treasury of Devotion' we are indebted for this beautiful little manual for children. Beginning with prayers suited to the comprehension of the youngest, it contains devotions, litanies, hymns, and instructions, carefully proportioned to the gradually increasing powers of a child's mind from the earliest years, until Confirmation. This little book cannot fail to influence for good the impressible hearts of children, and we hope that ere long it will be in the hands of all those who are blessed with Catholic-minded parents. It is beautifully got up, and is rendered more attractive by the capital engravings of Fra Angelico's pictures of scenes of our Lord's childhood. God-parents could scarcely find a more appropriate gift for their God-children to lead them to a knowledge of the truth."—CHURCH UNION GAZETTE.

"A first book of Prayers and instruction for children, compiled by a priest, and edited by the Rev. T. T. Carter, Rector of Clewer. It is a very careful compilation, and the name of its editor is a warrant for its devotional tone."—GUARDIAN.

"A handsomely got up and attractive volume, with several good illustrations from Fra Angelico's most famous paintings."—UNION REVIEW.

Words to Take with Us. A Manual of Daily and Occasional Prayers, for Private and Common Use. With Plain Instructions and Counsels on Prayer. By W. E. SCUDAMORE, M.A., Rector of Ditchingham, and formerly Fellow of S. John's College, Cambridge. New Edition, revised. Small 8vo. 2s. 6d.

"'Words to Take with Us,' by W. E. Scudamore, is one of the best manuals of daily and occasional prayer we have seen. At once orthodox and practical, sufficiently personal, and yet not perplexingly minute in its details, it is calculated to be of inestimable value in many a household."—JOHN BULL.

"We are again pleased to see an old friend on the editorial table, in a third edition of Mr. Scudamore's well-known Manual of Prayers. The special proper collects for each day of the week, as well as those for the several seasons of the Christian year, have been most judiciously selected. The compiler moreover, while recognising the full benefits to be derived from the Book of Common Prayer, has not feared to draw largely from the equally invaluable writings of ancient Catholicity. The preface is a systematic arrangement of instructions in prayer and meditation."—CHURCH REVIEW.

Self-Renunciation. From the French.

With Introduction by the Rev. T. T. CARTER, M.A., Rector of Clewer, Berks. Crown 8vo. 6s.

"It is excessively difficult to review or criticise, in detail, a book of this kind, and yet its abounding merits, its practicalness, its searching good sense and thoroughness, and its frequent beauty, too, make us wish to do something more than announce its publication. . . . The style is eminently clear, free from redundancy and prolixity."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"Few save Religious and those brought into immediate contact with them are, in all probability, acquainted with the French treatise of Guillard, a portion of which is now, for the first time we believe, done into English. . . . Hence the suitability of such a book as this for those who, in the midst of their families, are endeavouring to advance in the spiritual life. Hundreds of devout souls living in the world have been encouraged and helped by such books as Dr. Neale's 'Sermons preached in a Religious House.' For such the present work will be found appropriate, while for Religious themselves it will be invaluable."—CHURCH TIMES.

Spiritual Guidance. With an Introduction

by the Rev. T. T. CARTER, M.A., Rector of Clewer, Berks. Crown 8vo. 6s.

"It is as good for the clergy as for the laity, and we set much store by many of the 'Maxims for Beginners' as the subject of Direction which meet the reader at the outset of the volume. They are full of plain common sense, which is generally the same thing as the highest wisdom, and if they were read, pondered, and acted on, would do incalculable good to both priests and people."—UNION REVIEW.

"As a work intended for general use, it will be found to contain much valuable help, and may be profitably studied by any one who is desiring to make progress in spiritual life. Much of the contents of this little book will be found more or less applicable to all persons amid the ordinary difficulties and trials of life, and a help to the training of the mind in habits of self-discipline."—CHURCH TIMES.

Voices of Comfort. Edited by the Rev.

THOMAS VINCENT FOSBERY, M.A., sometime Vicar of St. Giles's, Reading. Second Edition. Small 8vo. 7s. 6d.

[This Volume, of prose and poetry, original and selected, aims at revealing the fountains of hope and joy which underlie the griefs and sorrows of life.

It is so divided as to afford readings for a month. The key-note of each day is given by the title prefixed to it, such as: 'The Power of the Cross of Christ, Day 6. Conflicts of the Soul, Day 17. The Communion of Saints, Day 20. The Comforter, Day 22. The Light of Hope, Day 25. The Coming of Christ, Day 28.' Each day begins with passages of Holy Scripture. These are followed by articles in prose, which are succeeded by one or more short prayers. After these are Poems or passages of poetry, and then very brief extracts in prose or verse close the section. The book is meant to meet, not merely cases of bereavement or physical suffering, but 'to minister specially to the hidden troubles of the heart, as they are silently weaving their dark threads into the web of the seemingly brightest life.')

Hymns and Poems for the Sick and Suffering. In connexion with the Service for the Visitation of the Sick. Selected from various Authors. Edited by the Rev. THOMAS VINCENT FOSBERY, M.A., sometime Vicar of St. Giles's, Reading. New Edition. Small 8vo. 3s. 6d.

[This Volume contains 233 separate pieces; of which about 90 are by writers who lived prior to the eighteenth century; the rest are modern, and some of these original. Amongst the names of the writers (between 70 and 80 in number) occur those of Sir J. Beaumont; Sir T. Brown; F. Davison; Elizabeth of Bohemia; P. Fletcher; G. "We should be curious to know by how many different hands 'The Devout Life' of S. Francis de Sales had been translated into English. At any rate, its popularity is so great that Messrs. The Spirit of S. Francis de Sales, Bishop and Prince of Geneva. Translated from the French by the Author of "The Life of S. Francis de Sales," "A Dominican Artist," &c., &c. Crown 8vo. 6s.

"S. Francis de Sales, as shown to us by the Bishop of Belley, was clearly as bright and lively a companion as many a sinner of witty reputation. He was a student of human nature on the highest grounds, but he used his knowledge for amusement as well as edification. Naturally we learn this from one of his male friends rather than from his female adorers. This friend is Jean-Pierre Camus, Bishop of Belley, author, we are told, of two hundred books—one only however still known to fame, the Spirit of S. Francis de Sales, which has fairly earned him the title of the ecclesiastical Boswell."—SATURDAY REVIEW.

"An admirable translation of Bishop Camus' well-known collection of that good man's sayings and opinions. . . . Among the best passages in the book are those on charity, on controversy (at p. 404), on true devotion as exemplified in a right fulfilling of our own vocation, and upon hearing the Word of God; the condemnation at page 41 of those who are always finding fault with preachers is almost identical with George Herbert's stanzas on the same subject. As a whole, we can imagine no more delightful companion than 'The Spirit of S. Francis de Sales,' nor, we may add, a more useful one."—PEOPLE'S MAGAZINE.

The Hidden Life of the Soul. From the French. By the Author of "A Dominican Artist," "Life of Bossuet," &c., &c. New Edition. Small 8vo. 2s. 6d.

"'The Hidden Life of the Soul,' by the author of 'A Dominican Artist,' is from the writings of Father Grou, a French refugee priest of 1792, who died at Lutworth. It well deserves the character given it of being 'earnest and sober,' and not 'sensational.'"—GUARDIAN.

"From the French of Jean Nicolas Grou, a pious Priest, whose works teach resignation to the Divine will. He loved, we are told, to inculcate simplicity, freedom from all affectation and unreality, the patience and humility which are too surely grounded in self-knowledge to be surprised at a fall, but withal so allied to confidence in God as to make recovery easy and sure. This is the spirit of the volume which is intended to furnish advice to those who would cultivate a quiet, meek, and childlike spirit."—PUBLIC OPINION.

"There is a wonderful charm about these readings—so calm, so true, so thoroughly Christian. We do not know where they would come amiss. As materials for a consecutive series of meditations for the faithful at a series of early celebrations they would be excellent, or for private reading during Advent or Lent."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

MANT, D.D., sometime Lord Bishop of Down and Connor. New Edition. Small 8vo. 5s.

"Real poetry wedded to words that breathe the purest and the sweetest spirit of Christian devotion. The translations from the old Latin Hymnal are close and faithful renderings."

—STANDARD.

"As a Hymn writer Bishop Mant deservedly occupies a prominent place in the esteem of Churchmen, and we doubt not that many will be the readers who will welcome this new edition of his translations and original compositions."—ENGLISH CHURCHMAN.

"A new edition of Bishop Mant's 'Ancient Hymns from the Roman Breviary' forms a handsome little volume, and it is interesting to compare some of these translations with the more modern ones of our own day."

While we have no hesitation in awarding the palm to the latter, the former are an evidence of the earliest germs of that yearning of the devout mind for something better than Tate and Brady, and which is now so richly supplied."—CHURCH TIMES.

"This valuable manual will be of great assistance to all compilers of Hymn Books. The translations are graceful, clear, and forcible, and the original hymns deserve the highest praise. Bishop Mant has caught the very spirit of true psalmody, his metre flows musically, and there is a tuneful ring in his verses which especially adapts them for congregational singing."—ROCK.

"We have tested this work on various points of a crucial character, and have found it very accurate and full in its information. It embodies the results of the most recent Acts of the Legislature on the clerical profession and the rights of the laity."—STANDARD.

"Already in our leading columns we have directed attention to Messrs. Blunt and Phillimore's 'Book of Church Law,' as an excellent manual for ordinary use. It is a book which should stand on every clergyman's shelves ready for use when any legal matter arises about which its possessor is in doubt. It is to be hoped that the authorities at our Theological Colleges sufficiently recognise the value little legal knowledge on the part of the clergy to recommend this book to their students. It would serve admirably as the text-book for a set of lectures, and we trust we shall hear that its publication has done something to encourage the younger clergy to make themselves masters of at least the general outlines of Ecclesiastical Law, as it relates to the Church of England."—CHURCH TIMES.

"There is a copious index, and the whole volume forms a Handy-book of Church Law down to the present time, which, if found on the library shelves of most of the clergy, would often save them from much unnecessary trouble, vexation, and expense."—NATIONAL CHURCH.

"This is the third edition of a work which has become deservedly popular as the best extant exposition of the principles and practice of the pastoral work in the Church of England. Its hints and suggestions are based on practical experience, and it is further recommended by the majority of our Bishops at the ordination of priests and deacons."—STANDARD.

"Its practical usefulness to the parochial clergy is proved by the acceptance it has already received at their hands, and no faithful parish priest, who is working in real earnest for the extension of spiritual instruction amongst all classes of his flock, will rise from the perusal of its pages without having obtained some valuable hints as to the best mode of bringing home our Church's system to the hearts of his people."—

"In this little volume we have a manual long called for by the requirements of church music. In a series of thirty-two lessons it gives, with an admirable conciseness, and an equally observable completeness, all that is necessary a chorister should be taught out of a book, and a great deal calculated to have a value as bearing directly upon his actual practice in singing."—MUSICAL STANDARD.

Stones of the Temple; or, Lessons from the Fabric and Furniture of the Church. By WALTER FIELD, M.A., F.S.A., Vicar of Godmersham. With numerous Illustrations. Second Edition. Crown 8vo. 7s. 6d.

"Any one who wishes for simple information on the subjects of Church-architecture and furniture, cannot do better than consult 'Stones of the Temple.' Mr. Field modestly disclaims any intention of supplanting the existing regular treatises, but his book shows an amount of research, and a knowledge of what he is talking about, which make it practically useful as well as pleasant. The woodcuts are numerous, and some of them very pretty."—GRAPHIC.

"A very charming book, by the Rev. Walter Field, who was for years Secretary of one of the leading Church Societies. Mr. Field has a loving reverence for the beauty of the domus mansionalis Dei, as the old law books called the Parish Church.

Thoroughly sound in Church feeling, Mr. Field has chosen the medium of a tale to embody real incidents illustrative of the various portions of his subject. There is no attempt at elaboration of the narrative, which, indeed, is rather a string of anecdotes than a story, but each chapter brings home to the mind its own lesson, and each is illustrated with some very interesting engravings. . . . The work will properly command a hearty reception from Churchmen. The footnotes are occasionally most valuable, and are always pertinent, and the text is sure to be popular with young folks for Sunday reading."—STANDARD.

"Mr. Field's chapters on brasses, chancel screens, crosses, encaustic tiles, mural paintings, porches and pavements, are agreeably written, and people with a turn for Ritualism will no doubt find them edifying. The volume, as we have said, is not without significance for readers who are unable to sympathize with the object of the writer. The illustrations of Church-architecture and Church ornaments are very attractive."—PALL MALL GAZETTE.

"'Stones of the Temple' is a grave book, the result of antiquarian, or rather ecclesiological, tastes and of devotional feelings. We can recommend it to young people of both sexes, and it will not disappoint the most learned among them. . . . Mr. Field has brought together, from well known authorities, a considerable mass of archaeological information, which will interest the readers he especially addresses."—ATHENÆUM.

"Very appropriate as a Christmas present, is an elegant and instructive book, which is in great measure a republication of some papers with which many of our readers are familiar. The first sixteen chapters of 'Stones of the Temple,' by Walter Field, appeared in the 'Church Builder.' They are now completed by fourteen more, and both together furnish a full and clear account of the meaning and history of the several parts of the fabric and of the furniture of the Church. It is illustrated with a number of carefully drawn pictures, sometimes of entire churches, sometimes of remarkable monuments, windows, or wall paintings. We may add that the style of the commentary, which is cast in the form of a dialogue between a parson and some of his parishioners, and hangs together by a slight thread of story, is quiet and sensible, and free from exaggeration or intolerance."—GUARDIAN.

Dictionary of Doctrinal and Historical Theology. By Various Writers. Edited by the Rev. JOHN HENRY BLUNT, M.A., F.S.A., Editor of the "Annotated Book of Common Prayer," &c., &c. Second Edition, Imperial 8vo, 42s., or half-bound in morocco, 52s. 6d.

"Taken as a whole the articles are the work of practised writers, and well-informed and solid theologians. . . . We know no book of its size and bulk which supplies the information here given at all; far less which supplies it in an arrangement so accessible, with a completeness of information so thorough, and with an ability in the treatment of profound subjects so great. Dr. Hook's most useful volume is a work of high calibre, but it is the work of a single mind. We have here a wider range of thought from a greater variety of sides. We have here also the work of men who evidently know what they write about, and are somewhat more profound (to say the least) than the writers of the current Dictionaries of Sects and Heresies."—GUARDIAN.

"Thus it will be obvious that it takes a very much wider range than any undertaking of the same kind in our language; and that to those of our clergy who have not the fortune to spend in books, and would not have the leisure to use them if they possessed them, it will be the most serviceable and reliable substitute for a large library we can think of. And in many cases, while keeping strictly within its province as a Dictionary, it contrives to be marvellously suggestive of thought and reflections, which a serious-minded man will take with him and ponder over for his own elaboration and future use. We trust most sincerely that the book may be largely used. For a present to a Clergyman on his ordination, or from a parishioner to his pastor, it would be most appropriate. It may indeed be called 'a box of tools for a working clergyman.'"—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"Seldom has an English work of equal magnitude been so permeated with Catholic instincts, and at the same time seldom has a work on theology been kept so free from the drift of rhetorical incrustation. Of course, it is not meant that all these remarks apply in their full extent to every article. In a great Dictionary there are compositions, as in a great house there are vessels, of various kinds. Some of these at a future day may be replaced by others more substantial in their build, more proportionate in their outline, and more elaborate in their detail. But admitting all this, the whole remains a home to which the student will constantly recur, sure to find spacious chambers, substantial furniture, and (which is most important) no stinted light."—CHURCH REVIEW.

"Within the sphere it has marked out for itself, no equally useful book of reference exists in English for the elucidation of theological problems.

. . . Entries which display much care, research, and judgment in compilation, and which will make the task of the parish priest who is brought face to face with any of the practical questions which they involve far easier than has been hitherto. The very fact that the utterances are here and there somewhat more guarded and hesitating than quite accords with our judgment, is a gain in so far as it protects the work from the charge of inculcating extreme views, and will thus secure its admission in many places where moderation is accounted the crowning grace."—CHURCH TIMES.

"It will be found of admirable service to all students of theology, as advancing and maintaining the Church's views on all subjects as fall within the range of fair argument and inquiry. It is not often that a work of so comprehensive and so profound a nature is marked to the very end by so many signs of wide and careful research, sound criticism, and well-founded and well-expressed belief."—STANDARD.

"Taken as a whole, we doubt not that the Dictionary will prove a useful work of reference; and it may claim to give in reasonable compass a mass of information respecting many religious schools knowledge of which could previously only be acquired from amid a host of literature. The articles are written with great fairness, and in many cases display careful scholarly work."—ATHENÆUM.

"A very comprehensive and bold undertaking, and is certainly executed with a sufficient amount of ability and knowledge to entitle the book to rank very high in point of utility."—GUARDIAN.

"That this is a work of some learning and research is a fact which soon becomes obvious to the reader."—SPECTATOR.

"A whole library is condensed into this admirable volume. All authorities are named, and an invaluable index is supplied."—NOTES AND QUERIES.

"We have tested it rigidly, and in almost every instance we have been satisfied with the account given under the name of sects, heresy, or ecclesiastical party."—JOHN BULL.

"After all deductions, it is the fullest and most trustworthy book of the kind that we possess. The quantity of information it presents in a convenient and accessible form is enormous, and having once appeared, it becomes indispensable to the theological student."—CHURCH TIMES.

"It has considerable value as a copious work of reference, more especially since a list of authorities is in most cases supplied."—EXAMINER.

the Bampton Lectures for 1865. By J. B. MOZLEY, D.D., Regius Professor of Divinity, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. Third Edition, revised. Crown 8vo. 7s. 6d.

"There is great brightness and beauty in many of the images in which the author condenses the issues of his arguments. And many passages are marked by that peculiar kind of eloquence which comes with the force of close and vigorous thinking; passages which slime-like steal through their very temper, and which are instinct with a controlled energy, that melts away all ruggedness of language. There can be no question that, in the deeper qualities of a scientific theology, the book is thoroughly worthy of the highest reputation which had been gained by Mr. Mozley's previous writings."—CONTEMPORARY REVIEW.

"Mr. Mozley's Bampton Lectures are an example, and a very fine one, of a mode of theological writing which is characteristic of the Church of England, and almost peculiar to it. The distinguishing features, a combination of intense seriousness with a self-restrained, severe calmness, and of very vigorous and wide-ranging reasoning on the realities of the case. . . .

Mr. Mozley's book belongs to that class of writings of which Butler may be taken as the type. It is strong, genuine argument about difficult matters, fairly facing what is difficult, fairly trying to grapple, not with what appears the gist and strong point of a question, but with what really and at bottom is the knot of it."—TIMES.

"A welcome republication of a treatise once highly valued, and which can never lose its value. Many of our readers already know the fulness and discrimination with which the author treats his subject, which must be one of the most delightful topics of meditation to all whose hearts are where the only true treasure is, and particularly to those who are entering upon the evening of life."—CHURCH REVIEW.

"The value of this book needs not to be referred to, its standard character having been for many years past established. The edition in which it reappears has evidently been carefully prepared, and will be the means of making it more generally known."—BELL'S MESSENGER.

"All recognise the authority of the command to set the affections on things above, and such works as the one now before us will be found helpful towards this good end. We are, therefore, sincerely glad that Messrs. Rivington have brought out a new edition of Bishop Mant's valuable treatise."—RECORD.

"We have read this book with interest. . . . We esteem the honesty with which it is evidently written, and we admire the courage which the author has shown in searching the Bible for evidences as to the destination of departed spirits, and in accepting such evidences as he has found, without attempting to explain them away or venturing to ignore them—two modes of proceeding which characterise most Scriptural exegesis."—BIRMINGHAM MORNING NEWS.

"The work is divided into twelve chapters, which we should imagine, from their style, to have originally formed sermons. . . . The writer discusses with considerable ability, and in a devout and reverent frame of mind, bringing whatever he has to say to the test of the Scriptures. The tone which pervades the book is as much to be commended as the interesting matter with which its pages abound."—SPIRITUAL MAGAZINE.

"The ability which Mr. Baring-Gould displays in the treatment of a topic which branches out in so many directions, and requires such precise handling, is apparent. His pages abound with the results of large reading and calm reflection. The man of culture, thought, philosophic cast, is mirrored in the entire argument. The book is sound and healthy in tone. It excites the reader's interest, and brightens the path of inquiry opened to his view. The language, too, is appropriate, neat, lucid, often happy, sometimes wonderfully terse and vigorous."—ATHENÆUM.

"Mr. Baring-Gould has undertaken a great and ambitious work. And no one can deny that he possesses some eminent qualifications for this great work. He has a wealth of erudition of the most varied description, especially in those particular regions of mediæval legend and Teutonic mythology which are certain to make large contributions to the purpose he has in hand. It is a contribution to religious thought of very high value."—GUARDIAN.

"Mr. Baring-Gould's work, from the importance of its subject and the lucid force of its expositions, as well as from the closeness of argument and copiousness of illustration with which its comprehensive views are treated, is entitled to attentive study, and will repay the reader by amusement and instruction."—MORNING POST.

"Our space warns us that we are attempting in vain to compress into a few columns the contents of four hundred pages of a work which has had few equals for brilliancy, learning, and point in this department of literature. We therefore conclude by recommending the volume itself to all students of mind and theology."—CHURCH TIMES.

NEWMAN'S PAROCHIAL AND PLAIN SERMONS—

Continued.

"Dr. Newman's sermons stand by themselves in modern English literature; it might be said, in English literature generally. There have been equally great masterpieces of English writing in this form of composition, and there have been preachers whose theological depth, acquaintance with the heart, earnestness, tenderness, and power have not been inferior to his. But the great writers do not touch, pierce, and get hold of minds as he does, and those who are famous for the power and results of their preaching do not write as he does. His sermons have done more perhaps than any one thing to mould and quicken and brace the religious temper of our time; they have acted with equal force on those who were nearest and those who were furthest from him in theological opinion."—SATURDAY REVIEW.

"They are undeniably models of style in writing of the most faultless kind. As addresses to a miscellaneous multitude they would have been failures; but as addresses to a cultivated audience of university students and tutors they are without a rival."—PALL MALL GAZETTE.

"We have said nothing of the exquisite manner of these sermons, the manner of a mind at once tender and holy, at once loving and austere, at once real and dramatic, at once full of insight into human nature and full of the humility which springs from a higher source."—SPECTATOR.

"We anticipate from the reappearance of the series a large measure of good both to the Church and to individuals; for Dr. Newman's influence as a teacher was, in his Oxford days, almost unrivalled."—CHURCH TIMES.

"We hope, and have no doubt, that as the value of these Sermons becomes more largely known they will become increasingly popular in the English Communion."—CHURCH NEWS.

"They are rich in practical instruction of a kind too seldom heard from the pulpit."—LONDON REVIEW.

"In reading these sermons, it is impossible to withhold one's high admiration for the many fine qualities which they display:—plain, unambiguous statement of Christian doctrine according to the preacher's view of it,—practical application of Church dogmas to individual life, character and conduct,—instructive exposition of Scripture, all conveyed in a faultless style and with well-sustained eloquence."—NONCONFORMIST.

"The noble sincerity of the preacher, and his classical reserve of diction, the poise and justness of the few ornaments with which he decorates his discussions, and above all, their touching and profound faith, must win the admiration and respect of every one who reads them."—LONDON REVIEW.

"These Sermons may still do much good; and we thank the publishers and editor for the spirit—for it required some—to do this service to religion."—CHRISTIAN REMEMBRANCE.

"Sermon-writers cannot do better than study the clear, sharp, polished, and yet simple style in which the meaning of the once great Anglican preacher is conveyed."—ENGLISH CHURCHMAN.

"The modest and extensive erudition, the large and exact information, the chaste and finished style, and the deep and serious earnestness which combined to give such freshness and force to his spoken discourses, reappear in many of the noble and edifying sermons now before us."—WATCHMAN.

"There cannot be a hand-somer present for Churchmen of the new generation."—CHURCH REVIEW.

"Few theologians go as deep as Dr. Newman and carry with them the same lucidity of thought and language. In this point, as well as in others, his sermons might well be taken as a model for a pulpit style, even by those who are not always disposed to follow him in his theology."—GLASGOW DAILY HERALD.

"We think he has conferred a valuable boon on the Church, by not merely reprinting them in their original shape, but adding a Catholic preface and Catholic notes. As to the earlier sermons, there are none perhaps of Father Newman's writings so concisely written in proportion to the largeness of their significance. They are not to be once read and then merely remembered, but rather to be studied again and again."—DUBLIN REVIEW.

CONTENTS OF VOL. II.

Rejoicing as in Spoil—Satan a Copyist—The binding the Tares into Bundles—Two walking together—Agreeing with the Adversary—God speaking to Moses—Hoping in Mercy—Faith as a Grain of Mustard Seed—Mary's Recompense—War in Heaven—Glory into Shame—The Last Judgment—Man like to Vanity—God so Loved the World—Saul—And what shall this Man do?—The Sickness and Death of Elisha—Abiding in our Callings—Trinity Sunday.

"The main characteristics of Canon Melvill's sermons are these—they are not polemical; the odium theologicum is nowhere to be found in them, and nowhere is the spirit of true Christian charity and love absent from them. This will widen their usefulness, for they will on this account make a ready way amongst all sects and creeds of professing Christians. Again, these sermons are eminently practical and devotional in their tone and aim. The truths here proclaimed pierce the heart to its very core, so true is the preacher's aim, so vigorous is the force with which he shoots the convictions of his own heart into the hearts of his hearers."

—STANDARD.

"There are in the sermons before us all Melvill's wonted grace of diction, strength of reasoning, and aptness of illustration."

—WEEKLY REVIEW.

"Two other volumes of the late

Canon Melvill's sermons contain forty discourses preached by him in his later years, and they are prefaced by a short memoir of one of the worthiest and most impressive preachers of recent times."

—EXAMINER.

"Many years have now elapsed since we first heard Henry Melvill. But we can still recall the text, the sermon, the deep impression made upon us by the impassioned eloquence of the great preacher. It was our first, and very profitable experience of what influence there resides in the faithful preaching of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. For while it was impossible to be indifferent to the messenger, yet the message was brought home by him to the heart and to the conscience. It is pleasant in these, the latest sermons delivered by Mr. Melvill, to find the same faithful utterance."

Manuals of Religious Instruction.

Edited by JOHN PILKINGTON NORRIS, B.D., Canon of Bristol, Church Inspector of Training Colleges.

The Old Testament.

The New Testament.

The Prayer Book.

Each Book in Five Parts. Small 8vo. 1s. each Part.

3 Volumes. Small 8vo. 3s. 6d. each.

[These Manuals are intended to supply a need of which all who have examined Pupil Teachers in religious knowledge must be aware. They are a response to very many applications which the Editor has received on the subject. Their scheme was framed after a careful comparison of the courses of religious instruction put forth in several dioceses in the last two years.

It will be seen that three text-books are provided for each of the five years of pupil-teachership—

One on the Old Testament ;

One on the New Testament ;

One on the Catechism and Liturgy.

In preparing the Manual on the Catechism and Liturgy, the Editor—guided in this by the Bishop of Lincoln's very complete syllabus for the Pupil Teachers of the Lincoln Diocese—thought it best to spread the study of the Catechism over several years, rather than compress it into one. This may give rise to what may appear some needless repetition. But the Lessons of our Catechism are of such paramount importance, that it seems desirable to keep it continually in our Pupil Teachers' hands, as the best key to the study of the Prayer Book.

There has been a grievous want of definiteness in our Pupil Teachers' knowledge of Church doctrine. Nearly all the Diocesan Inspectors have noticed it. It has arisen, doubtless, from their Teachers assuming that they had clear elementary ideas about religion, in which really they had never been grounded. It is therefore thought not too much to ask them to give one-third of their time to the study of the Prayer Book.

In the Old Testament and New Testament Manuals the greatest pains have been taken to give them such a character as shall render it impossible for them to supersede the Sacred Text. Two main objects the writers of the Old and New Testament Manuals have proposed to themselves; first, to stimulate interest; second, to supply a sort of running commentary on the inspired page. Especial pains have been taken to draw the Pupil Teacher's attention to the spiritual teaching of Holy Scripture, and to subordinate to this the merely historical interest.

The writer of the Old Testament Manual has made it his endeavour—in this also following the excellent suggestions of the Bishop of Lincoln's letter to his Diocesan Inspectors—to help the reader to see our Lord Christ in Law, in Psalms, in Prophets.

The New Testament Manual is confined to the Gospels and Acts. It was found impossible to include any of the Epistles. And all who are charged with the instruction of Pupil Teachers seemed to deprecate it.

Although they were prepared with special regard to Pupil Teachers they may be found adapted also for all students of a like age (from thirteen to eighteen) who have not access to many books.]

8. Allegories and Tales.

Allegories and Tales. By the Rev. W.

E. HEYGATE, M.A., Rector of Brighstone. Crown 8vo. 5s.

"It is eminently original, and every one of its sixty-three short allegories is a story that the duller child will read and the intelligent child will understand and enjoy. Grave thought, kindly railery, biting sarcasm, grim humour, sincere indignation, wise counsel, a broad charity, and other characteristics, run through the allegories, many of which are highly poetical and good models of that style of composition."—EDINBURGH COURANT.

Mr. Heygate's volume contains about sixty short tales or allegories, all rife with good teaching, plainly set forth, and written in a very engaging and attractive style. As a present for children this book would be at once acceptable and beneficial. It can be highly commended."—CHURCH HERALD.

"There are both grace and precision about these 'Allegories and Tales,' which make them charming to read either for young or for old. The stories are some of them quaint, some of them picturesque, all of them pleasant; and the moral they inclose shines out soft and clear as through a crystal. This is a book that may be recommended for a present, not only for young people, but for those of larger growth."—ATHENÆUM.

"The Rector of Brighstone has the gift of writing moral and spiritual lessons for the young in the most attractive fashion. His 'Allegories and Tales' are excellent specimens of stories, with a moral, in which the moral is not obtrusive and yet is not lost."—ENGLISH INDEPENDENT.

"A book of very great beauty and power. Mr. Heygate is a thoughtful, earnest and able writer, on whom more than any one is fallen in a striking manner the mantle of the great author of 'Agathos.'"—JOHN BULL.

Soimême; a Story of a Wilful Life.

Small 8vo. 3s. 6d.

"There is a very quiet, earnest tone in this story, which reconciles the reader to the lesson which it is intended to teach. It is essentially a story of character, and the heroine who is supposed to relate it is presented in a clearly defined and somewhat picturesque manner. . . . To the thoughtful who are passing from youth to riper years, 'Soimême' will prove both attractive and useful."—PUBLIC OPINION.

"A vein of lofty, moral, and deep religious feeling runs through the whole tale, and the author neither prosess nor preaches."—STANDARD.

"A very natural, unaffected, and simple little story for young people—one which they will not only read but enjoy."—MORNING HERALD.

"The author promises to become a valuable accession to the ranks of our popular lady writers. 'Soimême' is a simple life-like story, charmingly told and gracefully written, and, what is better still, its tendencies are excellent. The lessons it teaches are of the highest order."—EUROPEAN MAIL.

"There are many clever little bits of description, and excellent maxims worth remembering. The scenery is all charmingly described."—MONTHLY PACKET.

The First Chronicle of Æscendune.

A Tale of the Days of Saint Dunstan. By the Rev. A. D. CRAKE, B.A., Chaplain of All Saints' School, Bloxham, Author of the "History of the Church under the Roman Empire," &c. &c. Crown 8vo. 3s. 6d.

"The volume will possess a strong interest, especially for the young, and be useful, too, for though in form a tale, it may be classed among 'the side-lights of history.'"—STANDARD.

"History is strictly adhered to, and so clearly put before the mind, that all clouds, if clouds there were, as to the persons, occurrences, and state of public feeling at the time about which he writes, quickly and entirely disappear. The author has provided against criticism by a full preface and very lucid notes, which give the writer's authority for most of the chief facts of his narrative. Altogether the book shows great thought and careful study of the manners and customs of those early Saxon times."—JOHN BULL.

"Mr. Crake, while carefully consulting both the earliest and latest authorities, from Florence of Worcester to Mr. E. A. Freeman, so as to make his tale harmonize in events and colouring with the actual facts, has taken care not to write too far above the level of his boy readers. We shall be glad when Mr. Crake takes up his pen once more, to give us a further instalment of the annals of the House of Æscendune."—CHURCH TIMES.

"A very interesting and well written story of Saxon times—the times of Dunstan and the hapless Edwy. The author has evidently taken great pains to examine into the real history of the period (and the result is certainly favourable to the reputation of Dunstan). . . . We can scarcely imagine it possible that it should be anything else than a great favourite."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

It is one of the best historical tales for the young that has been published for a long time."—NONCONFORMIST.

"Written with much spirit and a careful attention to the best authorities on the history of the period of which he treats."—NATIONAL CHURCH.

"The literary merit of the story is considerable. It is told with simplicity and animation; and some of the characters—particularly those of King Edwy and Elyric—are drawn with much force, while the plot is well-constructed, and the incidents are numerous and interesting."—SCOTSMAN.

"The facts upon which the Chronicle is based have been carefully brought together from a variety of sources, and great skill has been shown in the construction of the narrative. The aim of the author is certainly a good one, and his efforts have been attended with a considerable amount of success."—ROCK.

"The vein struck by the author in the 'First Chronicle,' if a comparatively fresh one, is also to some extent a hazardous one, for it is notoriously difficult to focus public interest at a point pre-medieval; the chance is doubly doubtful in this volume, because intended for youth,—youth which is all for the key-day of modern adventure. Yet Mr. Crake accomplishes his delicate task with singular grace and finish, and paints his early picture so attractively, that any boy of refined taste must be taken by the dramatic fascination of the story."—SUSSEX DAILY NEWS.

Bossuet and his Contemporaries. By the Author of "Life of S. Francis de Sales," "A Dominican Artist," &c. Crown 8vo. 12s.

"The book as a literary work has rare merits, and as a chronicle of Church life in France at an eventful period it is invaluable in itself, and rendered more so by its well-timed appearance. Whether in his diocesan organisation, his direct spiritual work, or in his more public career, the life of Bossuet is one which deserves the careful study of English Churchmen."

"Should be read widely."—SCOTSMAN.

"All biography is delightful, and this story of Bossuet is eminently so."—NOTES AND QUERIES.

"In the ten chapters that compose the work we have a rapid yet complete sketch of the life of Bossuet, accompanied by short and generally judicious criticisms of his works, which are arranged in chronological order, and thus play the part they ought to play in the biography of a man whose writings were his deeds."—ATHENÆUM.

"We are always glad to welcome a fresh work from the graceful pen of the author of 'A Dominican Artist.' And the fact that not only is there no popular Life of Bossuet to be found in France, as we are told in the preface, but, so far as we are aware, no Life of him at all in English, gives an additional interest to the present volume."—SATURDAY REVIEW.

A Dominican Artist: A Sketch of the Life of the Rev. Père Besson, of the Order of St. Dominic. By the Author of "The Life of Madame Louise de France," &c. New Edition. Crown 8vo. 6s.

"The author of the Life of Père Besson writes with a grace and refinement of devotional feeling peculiarly suited to a subject-matter which suffers beyond most others from any coarseness of touch. It would be difficult to find 'the simplicity and purity of a holy life' more exquisitely illustrated than in Father Besson's career, both before and after his joining the Dominican Order under the auspices of Lacordaire. . . . Certainly we have never come across what could more strictly be termed in the truest sense 'the life of a beautiful soul.' The author has done well in presenting to English readers this singularly graceful biography, in which all who can appreciate genuine simplicity and nobleness of Christian character will find much to admire and little or nothing to condemn."—SATURDAY REVIEW.

"It would indeed have been a deplorable omission had so exquisite a biography been by any neglect lost to English readers, and had a character so perfect in its simple and complete devotion been withheld from our admiration. . . . But we have dwelt too long already on this fascinating book, and must now leave it to our readers."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"A beautiful and most interesting sketch of the late Père Besson, an artist who forsook the easel for the altar."—CHURCH TIMES.

"A book which is as pleasant for reading as it is profitable for meditation."—UNION REVIEW.

"Whatever a reader may think of Père Besson's profession as a monk, no one will doubt his goodness; no one can fail to profit who will patiently read his life, as here written by a friend, whose sole defect is in being slightly unctuous."—ATHENÆUM.

"The life of the Rev. Père Besson, who gave up an artist's career, to which he was devotedly attached, and a mother whose affection for him is not inaptly likened to that of Monica for St. Augustine, must be read in its entirety to be rightly appreciated. And the whole tenour of the book is too devotional, too full of expressions of the most touching dependence on God, to make criticism possible, even if it was called for, which it is not."—JOHN BULL.

"The story of Père Besson's life is one of much interest, and told with simplicity, candour, and good feeling."—SPECTATOR.

"A beautiful book, describing the most saintly and very individual life of one of the companions of Lacordaire."—MONTHLY PACKET.

The Life of Madame Louise de France, Daughter of Louis XV., also known as the Mother Tèrese de St. Augustin. By the Author of "A Dominican Artist," &c. New Edition. Crown 8vo. 6s.

"Such a record of deep, earnest, self-sacrificing piety, beneath the surface of Parisian life, during what we all regard as the worst age of French godlessness, ought to teach us all a lesson of hope and faith, let appearances be what they may. Here, from out of the court and family of Louis XV. there issues this Madame Louise, whose life is set before us as a specimen of as calm and unworldly devotion—of a devotion, too, full of shrewd sense and practical administrative talent—as any we have ever met with."—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

Life of S. Francis de Sales. By the Author of "A Dominican Artist," &c. Crown 8vo. 6s.

"It is written with the delicacy, freshness, and absence of all affectation which characterized the former works by the same hand, and which render these books so very much more pleasant reading than are religious biographies in general. The character of S. Francis de Sales, Bishop of Geneva, is a charming one; a more simple, pure, and pious life it would be difficult to conceive. His unaffected humility, his freedom from dogmatism in an age when dogma was placed above religion, his freedom from bigotry in an age of persecution, were alike admirable."—STANDARD.

"The author of 'A Dominican Artist,' in writing this new life of the wise and loving Bishop and Prince of Geneva, has aimed less at historical or ecclesiastical investigation than at a vivid and natural representation of the inner mind and life of the subject of his biography, as it can be traced in his own writings and in those of his most intimate and affectionate friends. The book is written with the grave and quiet grace which characterizes the productions of its author, and cannot fail to please those readers who can sympathize with all forms of goodness and devotion to noble purpose."—WESTMINSTER REVIEW.

"A book which contains the record of a life as sweet, pure, and noble, as any man by divine help, granted to devout sincerity of soul, has been permitted to live upon earth. The example of this gentle but resolute and energetic spirit, wholly dedicated to the highest conceivable good, offering itself, with all the temporal uses of mental existence, to the service of infinite and eternal beneficence, is extremely touching. It is a book worthy of acceptance."—DAILY NEWS.

"It is not a translation or adaptation, but an original work, and a very charming portrait of one of the most winning characters in the long gallery of Saints. And it is a matter of entire thankfulness to us to find a distinctively Anglican writer setting forward the good Bishop's work among Protestants, as a true missionary task to reclaim souls from deadly error, and bring them back to the truth."—UNION REVIEW.

de l'Oratoire, Professeur de Morale Evangélique à la Sorbonne, et Membre de l'Académie Française. Translated, by special permission, by the Author of "A Dominican Artist," "Life of S. Francis de Sales," &c. &c. With Portrait. Crown 8vo. 7s. 6d.

"A most touching and powerful piece of biography, interspersed with profound reflections on personal religion, and on the prospects of Christianity. . . . For priests this book is a treasure. The moral of it is the absolute necessity of 'recollectedness' to the higher, and especially the true priestly life."—CHURCH REVIEW.

"The works of the translator of Henri Perreyve form, for the most part, a series of saintly biographies which have obtained a larger share of popularity than is generally accorded to books of this description. . . . The description of his last days will probably be read with greater interest than any other part of the book; presenting as it does an example of fortitude under suffering, and resignation, when cut off so soon after entering upon a much-coveted and useful career, of rare occurrence in this age of self-assertion. This is, in fact, the essential teaching of the entire volume. . . . The translator of the Abbé Gratry's work has done well in giving English readers an opportunity of profiting by its lessons."—MORNING POST.

"Those who take a pleasure in reading a beautiful account of a beautiful character would do well to procure the Life of 'Henri Perreyve.' . . . We would especially recommend the book for the perusal of English priests, who may learn many a holy lesson from the devoted spirit in which the subject of the memoir gave himself up to the duties of his sacred office, and to the cultivation of the graces with which he was endowed."—CHURCH TIMES.

"It is easy to see that Henri Perreyve, Professor of Moral Theology at the Sorbonne, was a Roman Catholic priest of no ordinary type. With comparatively little of what Protestants call superstition, with great courage and sincerity, with a nature singularly guileless and noble, his priestly vocation, although pursued, according to his biographer, with unbridled zeal, did not stifle his human sympathies and aspirations. He could not believe that his faith compelled him 'to renounce sense and reason,' or that a priest was not free to speak, act, and think like other men. Indeed, the Abbé Gratry makes a kind of apology for his friend's free-speaking in this respect, and endeavours to explain it. Perreyve was the beloved disciple of Lacordaire, who left him all his manuscripts, notes, and papers, and he himself attained the position of a great pulpit orator."—PALL MALL GAZETTE.

"We heartily recommend the introduction to the study of all concerned with ordinations."—GUARDIAN.

"We are glad that S. Vincent de Paul, one of the most remarkable men produced by the Gallican Church, has at last found a competent English biographer. The volume before us has evidently been written with conscientious care and scrupulous industry. It is based on the best authorities, which have been compared with praise-worthy diligence; its style is clear, elegant, and unambitious; and it shows a fine appreciation of the life and character of the man whom it commemorates."—SCOTTISH GUARDIAN.

"A compendious history of the Christian Church under the Roman Empire will be hailed with pleasure by all readers of ecclesiastical lore. . . . The author is quite free from the spirit of controversialism; wherever he refers to a prevalent practice of ancient times he gives his authority. In his statement of facts or opinions he is always accurate and concise, and his manual is doubtless destined to a lengthened period of popularity."—MORNING POST.

"It is very well done. It gives a very comprehensive view of the progress of events, ecclesiastical and political, at the great centres of civilisation during the first five centuries of Christianity."—DAILY NEWS.

"In his well-planned and carefully written volume of 500 pages Mr. Crake has supplied a well-known and long-felt want. Relying on all the highest and best authorities for his main facts and conclusions, and wisely making use of all modern research, Mr. Crake has spared neither time nor labour to make his work accurate, trustworthy, and intelligent."—STANDARD.

"Mr. Crake gives us in a clear and concise form a narrative of the Church history during the period with which it is most important that the young should first be made acquainted. The different events appear to be described with a judicious regard to their relative importance, and the manual may be safely recommended."—JOHN BULL.

"The facts are well marshalled, the literary style of the book is simple and good; while the principles enunciated throughout render it a volume which may be safely put into the hands of students. For the higher forms of grammar-schools it is exactly the book required. Never ponderous, and frequently very attractive and interesting, it is at once readable and edifying, and fills efficiently a vacant place in elementary historical literature. Furthermore its type is clear and bold, and it is well broken up into paragraphs."—UNION REVIEW.

"It retells an oft-told tale in a singularly fresh and perspicuous style, rendering the book neither above the comprehension of an intelligent boy or girl of fourteen or upwards, nor beneath the attention of an educated man. We can imagine no better book as an addition to a parochial library, as a prize, or as a reading book in the upper forms of middle-class schools."—SCOTTISH GUARDIAN.

"It offers a short and condensed account of the origin, growth, and condition of the Church in all parts of the world, from A.D. 1 down to the end of the fifteenth century. Mr. Blunt's first object has been conciseness, and this has been admirably carried out, and to students of Church history this feature will readily recommend itself. As an elementary work 'A Key' will be specially valuable, inasmuch as it points out certain definite lines of thought, by which those who enjoy the opportunity may be guided in reading the statements of more elaborate histories. At the same time it is but fair to Mr. Blunt to remark that, for general readers, the little volume contains everything that could be consistently expected in a volume of its character. There are many notes, theological, scriptural, and historical, and the 'get up' of the book is specially commendable. As a text-book for the higher forms of schools the work will be acceptable to numerous teachers."—

Life, Journals, and Letters of Henry

ALFORD, D.D., late Dean of Canterbury. Edited by his WIDOW. With Portrait and Illustrations. New Edition. Crown 8vo. 9s.

"The Life of Dean Alford will have a far more general interest than that of many more conspicuous theologians. . . . His life is written by his widow, and we need scarcely say that it was a difficult and delicate task for a wife to undertake. On the whole, Mrs. Alford has acquitted herself admirably. . . . His life was the best commentary on his character, and the remarks we have made or quoted as we have gone along leave us little more to add. Those who desire thoroughly to appreciate a valuable life and a beautiful character we refer to the volume itself."—TIMES.

"It was a beautiful life he lived; and touchingly beautiful in its unadorned simplicity is the record given to us in this volume by his life-long companion, who from his early boyhood had shared his every thought. . . . The real value of the memoir is that it gives us so attractive a portrait of its subject. Of this too much can hardly be said. . . . The goodness, the piety, the calm thankfulness, the ready submission, the charity breathing in every line, is unmistakable. And it is this that makes the book so attractive."—GUARDIAN.

"We have here the simple and loving record of a happy, industrious, and holy life. . . . To have known and valued Henry Alford will long be a source of heartfelt satisfaction to many others, besides those immediate friends whose names are linked with his in this beautiful and touching Life by his widow."—SATURDAY REVIEW.

"Here is a book of rare interest, the editing of which bears evidence not only of loving affection, as was natural, but of great care; and happily so many of Dean Alford's letters are given that one has a real insight into his own feelings."—JOHN BULL.

"No elaborate memoir from the pen of even his most intimate friend could give a truer insight or reflect more clearly the beautiful traits of Alford's inner character, with all the subdued and Christian sweetness which seems to have characterized the late Dean of Canterbury from his very earliest years, than these daily 'Experiences,' indited by his own hands."—SCOTSMAN.

"We must refer our readers to the volume for its incidents, and for very much that will enhance their admiration and their thankfulness to God that such a life has been lived. The memoir has been compiled by his widow in a spirit in perfect sympathy with his own."—BRITISH QUARTERLY REVIEW.

Sketches of the Rites and Customs of the Greco-Russian Church. By H. C. ROMANOFF. With an Introductory Notice by the Author of "The Heir of Redclyffe." Second Edition. Crown 8vo. 7s. 6d.

"The volume before us is anything but a formal liturgical treatise. It might be more valuable to a few scholars if it were, but it would certainly fail to obtain perusal at the hands of the great majority of those whom the writer, not unreasonably, hopes to attract by the narrative style she has adopted. What she has set before us is a series of brief outlines, which, by their simple effort to clothe the information given us in a living garb, reminds us of a once-popular child's book which we remember a generation ago, called 'Sketches of Human Manners.'"—CHURCH TIMES.

"The twofold object of this work is 'to present the English with correct descriptions of the ceremonies of the Greco-Russian Church, and at the same time with pictures of domestic life in Russian homes, especially those of the clergy and the middle class of nobles;' and, beyond question, the author's labour has been so far successful that, whilst her Church scenes may be commended as a series of most dramatic and picturesque tableaux, her social sketches enable us to look at certain points beneath the surface of Russian life, and materially enlarge our knowledge of a country concerning which we have still a very great deal to learn."—ATHENÆUM.

Fables respecting the Popes of the Middle Ages. A Contribution to Ecclesiastical History. By JOHN J. IGN. VON DÖLLINGER, D.D., D.C.L. Translated by the Rev. ALFRED PLUMMER, M.A., Master of University College, Durham, late Fellow of Trinity College, Oxford. 8vo. 14s.

The Knight of Intercession, and other

Poems. By the Rev. S. J. STONE, M.A., Pembroke College, Oxford. Third Edition, revised and enlarged. Small 8vo. 6s.

Yesterday, To-Day, and for Ever: A Poem in Twelve Books. By E. H. BICKERSTETH, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church, Hampstead. Tenth Edition. Small 8vo. 6s.

A Presentation Edition with red borders. Small 4to. 10s. 6d.

"We should have noticed among its kind a very magnificent presentation edition of 'Yesterday, To-day, and For Ever,' by the Rev. E. H. Bickersteth. This blank verse poem, in twelve books, has made its way into the religious world of England and America without much help from the critics. It is now made splendid for its admirers by morocco binding, broad margins, red lines, and beautiful photographs."

TIMES.

"The most simple, the richest, and the most perfect sacred poem which recent days have produced."—MORNING ADVERTISER.

"A poem worth reading, worthy of attentive study; full of noble thoughts, beautiful diction, and high imagination."—STANDARD.

"In these light miscellany days there is a spiritual refreshment in the spectacle of a man girding up the loins of his mind to the task of producing a genuine epic. And it is true poetry. There is a definiteness, a crispness about it, which in these moist, hazy days is no less invigorating than novel."—EDINBURGH DAILY REVIEW.

"Mr. Bickersteth writes like a man who cultivates at once reverence and earnestness of thought."—GUARDIAN.

The Two Brothers, and other Poems. By EDWARD HENRY BICKERSTETH, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church, Hampstead. Second Edition. Small 8vo. 6s.

A Shadow of Dante. Being an Essay towards studying Himself, his World, and his Pilgrimage. By MARIA FRANCESCA ROSSETTI. With Illustrations. Second Edition. Crown 8vo. 10s. 6d.

"The 'Shadow of Dante' is a well-conceived and inviting volume, designed to recommend the 'Divina Commedia' to English readers, and to facilitate the study and comprehension of its contents."—ATHENÆUM.

"And it is in itself a true work of art, a whole finely conceived, and carried out with sustained power."—GUARDIAN.

"We find the volume furnished with useful diagrams of the Dantesque universe, of Hell, Purgatory, and the 'Rose of the Blessed,' and adorned with a beautiful group of the likenesses of the poet, and with symbolic figures (on the binding) in which the taste and execution of Mr. D. G. Rossetti will be recognised. The exposition appears to us remarkably well arranged and digested; the author's appreciation of Dante's religious sentiments and opinions is peculiarly hearty, and her style refreshingly independent and original."—PALL MALL GAZETTE.

"The result has been a book which is not only delightful in itself to read, but is admirably adapted as an encouragement to those students who wish to obtain a preliminary survey of the land before they attempt to follow Dante through his long and arduous pilgrimage. Of all poets Dante stands most in need of such assistance as this book offers."—SATURDAY REVIEW.
